CHINESE EASTERN RAILWAY SEIZURE THREAT

KOWLOON BUSES

NEW COMPANY FORMED FOR MONOPOLY EXPANSION PLAN

A new company, the Kowloon Motor Bus Company (1933), Limited, has been formed to operate Kowloon's bus services under the franchise granted by the Government, which is due to take effect on June 11.

The authorised capital is $3,500,000 of which between one and two millions will be issued. The capital of the original company was $250,000.

The company is hopeful of an early satisfactory settlement of the negotiations now proceeding for the taking over of the buses and equipment of the two other companies now operating on the mainland.

110 BUSES.

Mr. Lam Ming-fan, the Secretary of the Company, in an interview with a Telegraph representative this morning, expressed his belief that the Company would probably be in full control before the date fixed.

At present, the Company owns fifty buses. The other companies own about 60, for which the price asked is round about $400,000, on a sterling basis.

EXPANSION PLANS.

Big plans for expansion are in contemplation. There are at present eleven routes on the mainland. The new company hopes to increase this number to eighteen, including the provision of services opening up the New Territories to a greater extent.

The present motor-vehicles will probably be in use for about two years, but the Company plans to convert their vehicles gradually to Diesel-engined buses.

ANTI-JAPANESE ORATOR

FINE IMPOSED ON DEALER

A Chinese medicine dealer who indulged in street oratory in Hollywood Road and collected a crowd of about 50 listeners, was fined $20 or three weeks' imprisonment by Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning.

Detective Inspector Carey said the defendant spoke about the Manchurian fighting, and was heard by the detective to say "We Chinese should boycott competitors."

The Inspector pointed out that if it were not for the fact that the emergency regulations had been repealed the defendant would have faced a more serious charge.

HOUR OF CRISIS NEARING

SOVIET MAKING SHOW OF FORCE

THE PROSPECT OF THE SEIZURE OF THE CHINESE EASTERN RAILWAY BY MANCHUKUO, FOLLOWING THE SOVIET'S REFUSAL TO RETURN THE LOCOMOTIVES WHICH MANCHUKUO CLAIMS TO BE THE PROPERTY OF THE C.E.R., IS AROUSING MUCH SPECULATION.

Soviet forces are continuing to make a show of force on the Manchuli frontier.

The Moscow newspapers have given considerable prominence to a dispatch received from Harbin, which alleges that the Japanese consul-general in Harbin, Mr. Morishima, has virtually taken over the administration of the Manchurian side of the C.E.R. Board.

It is claimed that the violent acts which resulted in the suspension of through traffic between the C.E.R. and the Trans-Baikal Railway were carried out on direct instructions from him, that he dictated the letters sent to M. Slavutsky, Soviet consul-general in Harbin, although they were signed by Mr. Sze Li-peng, the diplomatic agent of Manchukuo, and that he similarly dictated the letters sent to M. Kuznetsov, vice-president of the C.E.R. Board, by Mr. Li Shao-keng, president of the Board.

PLAN OF ACTION.

"Competent sources contend," the dispatch proceeds, "that Japanese circles in Manchuria have drawn up a plan of action in regard to the C.E.R. and have submitted same to the Kwantung military headquarters for approval. This plan calls for attacks on Soviet rights in the C.E.R., the ousting of the Soviet side and the seizure of the railway by the Japanese under the pretext of its transfer to Manchukuo. The means of implementing this plan for the gross violation of the Peking and Mukden agreements are the complete disorganization of the railway's normal activities, particularly on the eastern line, the interruption of freight traffic to and from the Trans-Baikal and Ussuri Railways, undermining the financial position of the C.E.R., and the creation of impossible working conditions for the Soviet side of the C.E.R."

ABSURDITY OF CLAIMS.

The plan of action includes the absolutely unfounded accusations against M. Rudy, manager of the C.E.R., charging him with arbitrary conduct and alleging that he admitted the detention in Soviet territory of locomotives and cars belonging to the C.E.R. These accusations are made in face of the irrefutably established fact that the locomotives in question are the property of the U.S.S.R. and that the C.E.R. has no rights as to their disposition, while concerning the cars the absurdity of the claims made is obvious from the fact that an exchange of cars between the Soviet and C.E.R. systems is a customary arrangement. There are more Soviet cars on the C.E.R. than vice versa.

SEIZURE FEARED.

"In the long run," the dispatch concludes, "all these anti-Soviet attacks are aimed practically at the seizure of the C.E.R. and its inclusion in the Manchukuo railway system under Japan's jurisdiction."

The Soviet Government organ, Izvestia, says that if the seal of Japanese officials in North Manchuria has urged them to such adventurist and provocative actions, we would like to hope that they are happening without the knowledge of the Japanese Government, which, as has frequently been observed before, may be confronted by accomplished facts.

The Japanese Government assumed responsibility for the non-violation of the rights and interests of the U.S.S.R. in the Chinese Eastern Railway. This should be sufficient. No hide-and-seek game can fool anybody as the Japanese representatives in Harbin desire to do.—Tass.

JUDGES' STRIKE

"OMISSION TO APPEAR"

Judges of the high court are considering action to force the Government to restore the 20 per cent. cut in their salaries which was made under the economy act and order in council of 1931.

It is extremely unlikely that a majority of the judges would agree to such a serious step as an "omission to appear" which would be tantamount to a strike—but even this step has been mentioned at secret conferences of the judges which are now taking place.

The judges argue that they are not "servants of the Crown" within the meaning of the Act under which their salaries were cut.

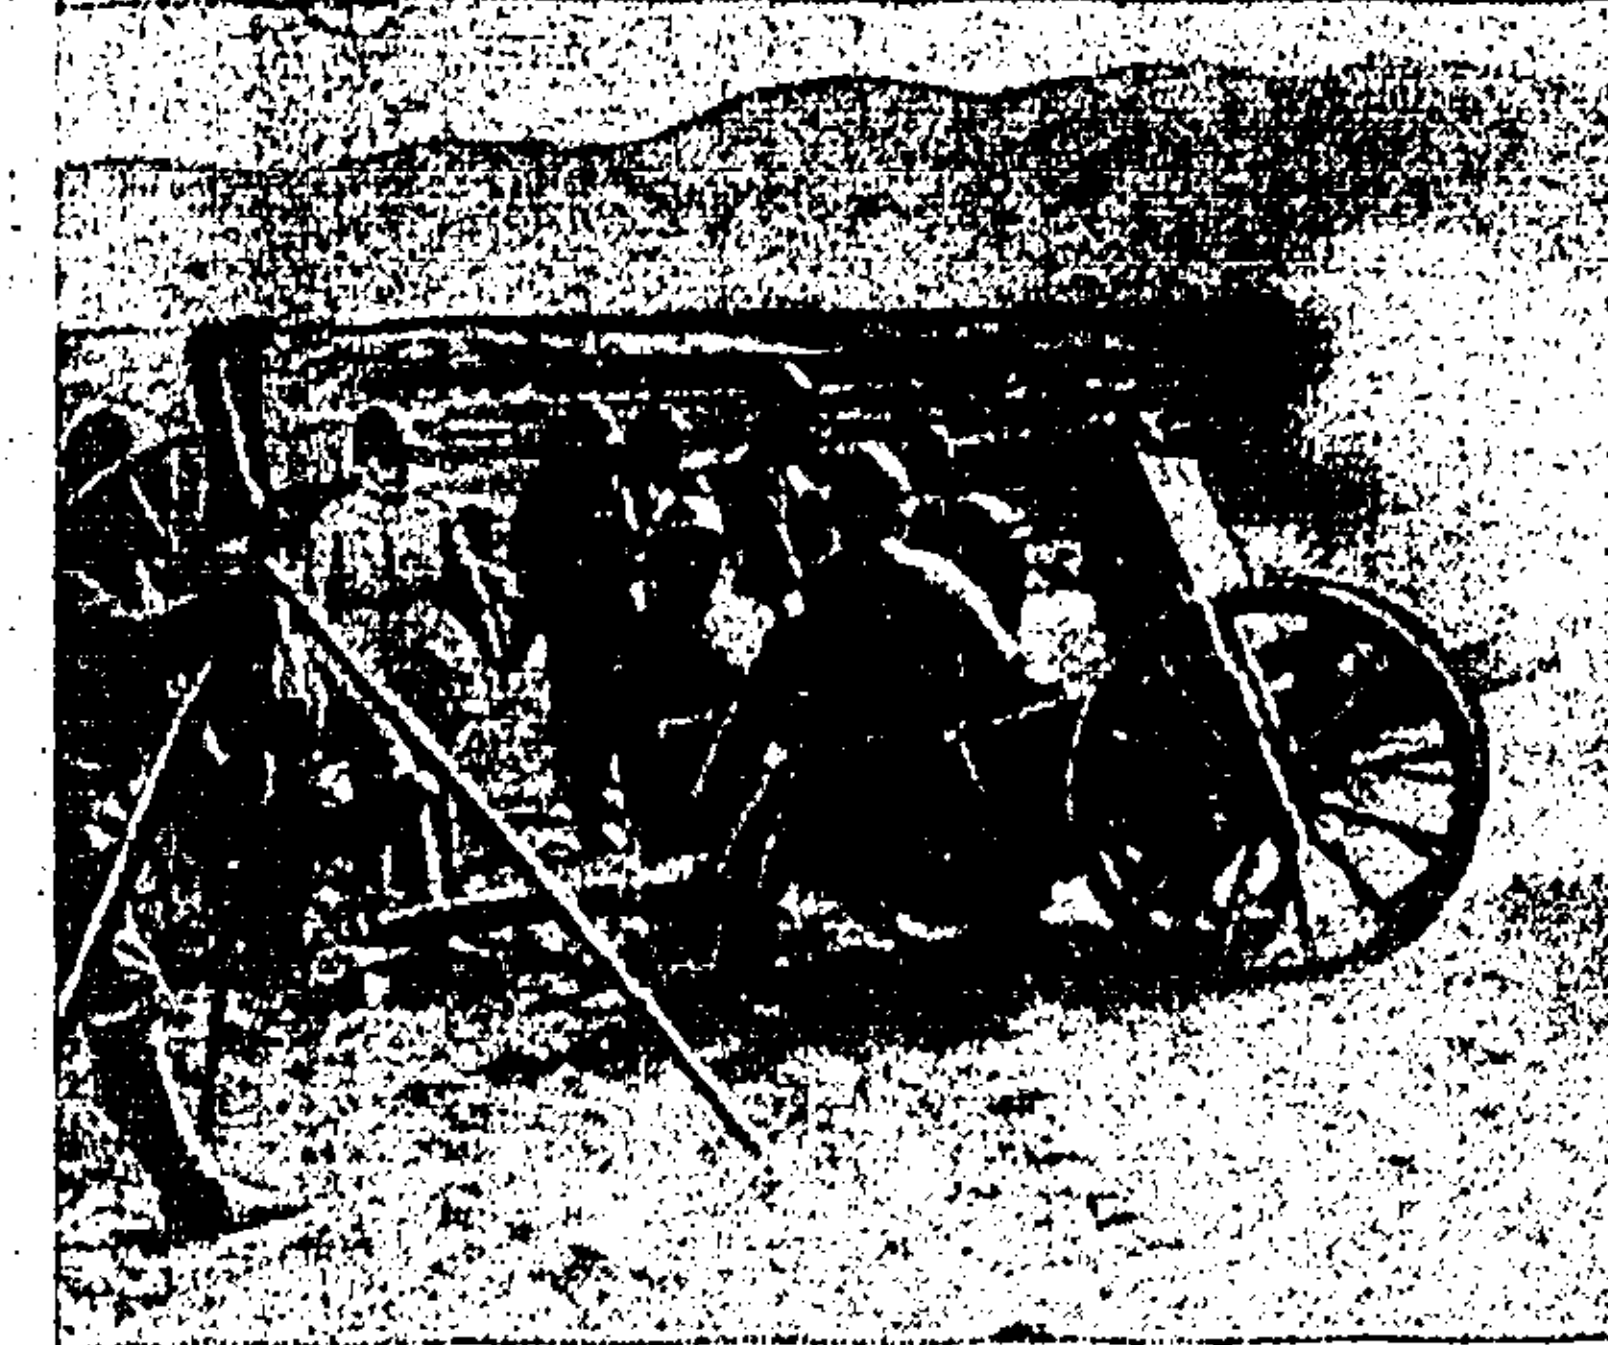

In view of the grave national emergency at that time the judges, after registering their protest, decided to postpone further action.

LESS PAY, MORE WORK.

But now the proposals of Lord Hanworth's Committee on Legal Procedure to shorten the Long Vacation by twelve days this year as an experiment has brought the matter to a head again, for it means more work for the judges.

The Council of judges has agreed to the shorter vacation. But the idea of working longer hours while suffering from a cut in salary which they maintain is illegal has produced a state of acute dissatisfaction among them.

They are determined to bring pressure on the Government, not only to restore the cuts but to pay the arrears owing over the past two years. An alternative to the suggested "omission to appear" move is for them to proceed by petition of right, in which case the judicial position of judges is Government would arise.

One of the rare pictures taken on the battlefield in the recent Sino-Japanese hostilities. It was taken near Kupoikow and shows a field piece in action.

MR. MATSUOKA'S EXPLANATION

BRITAIN BLAMED

Tokyo, May 2.

Confessing that he has returned to Japan with his mission unfulfilled, Mr. Matsuoka, who argued Japan's case before the League Council and League Assembly, delivered a broadcast address on the events at Geneva.

He is of opinion that the time has come for Japan to discard the diplomacy she has traditionally pursued for the past sixty odd years, in favour of an initiative national diplomacy based on the true spirit of Japan. There should be no tactical bargaining in diplomacy. At Geneva, he acted with strict veracity. He conscientiously avoided diplomatic bargaining, but spoke and acted honestly. To do anything to curry favour with the Western Powers would be to take a leaf out of the diplomatic book of China. Japan ought to have her own way of doing things. She must act sincerely and honestly with a view of vindicating the spirit of Japan in the world.

Mr. Matsuoka.

He said that the Powers were not necessarily ill-disposed towards Japan, but British, fearing the threatened anti-British boycott in Central and South China, suddenly changed her attitude at Geneva.

This, he declared, was the major factor in forcing Japan to withdraw from the League.

FRESH TROOPS IN CHARHAR

HOSTILITIES REPORTED RESUMED

Peking, May 3.

The arrival of Chinese reinforcements in Charhar resulted in hostilities to the south-west of Dolonor yesterday, with the Chinese under General Chao Sheng-shao taking the offensive.

Chinese sources claim the recapture of Dolonor, but this has not been confirmed owing to the difficulty of communication between Charhar and Peking.

Shansi regiments under General Fu Tso-yi are reported to have arrived near Dolonor and will join the troops under Chao Sheng-shao.

Chinese official circles believe that the extensive Japanese troop movements in the Kupoikow sector indicate an intention to withdraw. The Japanese appear to be planning to change to a defensive position at Kupoikow.

GIANTS BLANKED OUT BY CHICAGO

KEEN BASEBALL DUELS

Washington, May 2.

The New York Giants were given a drubbing by Chicago today, being blanked out by Warneke and having eleven runs scored against them.

Hartnett twice travelled the circuit after slashing the New York pitchers, and Steppenson also helped himself to a homer.

St. Louis ran riot against Brooklyn, snatching thirteen runs. Homers were credited to J. Wilson and Martin.

The New York Yankees were nosed out by Detroit, who managed to hit the third run to beat their rivals, but the rest of the American League programme was washed out.

CLOSURE THREAT DENIED

(The Telegraph, Copyright. Telegraphic Telegrams Ordinance, 1911. Received May 3, 1933 a.m.)

Changchun, May 2.

A semi-official statement has been issued by Manchukuo Government leaders denying any intention of abandoning the Open Door policy.

The statement says that Manchukuo is not contemplating any deviation from her Declaration of Independence, in which the maintenance of the Open Door and equal opportunity was emphasised.

"On the contrary," the statement continues, "Manchukuo is desirous of foreign cooperation in the development of her rich natural resources."

The publication of the statement follows closely upon a report of remarks by a Japanese Member of the Manchukuo Privy Council, who is alleged to have said, in effect, that Manchukuo may consider closing the door against foreign powers who do not recognise her.—Reuter.

THE REALM OF DREAMS

SIR C. CLEMENTI CRITICISED

URGED TO COME DOWN TO EARTH

Sir Cecil Clementi, former Governor of Hongkong, is again the subject of criticism in a leading Singapore journal.

The Straits Times, after detailing Sir Cecil's pronouncements of his views on future expansion and development in Malaya, comments:

Now we have no quarrel whatever with occasional visions. They are harmless enough in themselves and, conjured up for us by a master of words, as those mentioned undoubtedly have been, they tend to divert our attention from much closer and far less pleasant considerations.

It is a good thing that we should forget our troubles now and again, but dreams are unsatisfying fare and we cannot escape a fear that we are being asked to indulge in them to excess while problems which demand immediate and practical approach are allowed to become worse through inattention.

STARK REALITY.

For instance, if we come down from the realm of dreams and thrust aside for the moment the attractive prospect of a through railway system from Tanjong Pagar to Victoria, of a wonderful hill station at Penang, of a Rotten Row and a Henley at Singapore, we find as a matter of stark reality that there are many human beings in this country on the verge of starvation as a result of their inability to obtain employment. We find much that may be criticised as unnecessary expenditure in a time of great stress.

TRADE RESTRICTIONS.

We find the trade of the Colony impeded by the inability of various administrative bodies to find a solution, based on the principle of the greatest good for the greatest number, of an apparently simple problem which has arisen out of the grant of certain preferential duties. We find these and many other questions which demand immediate action and as they strike us, necessarily, forcibly, we cannot but feel that this is no time for further dreaming. We may thank His Excellency for the many excursions into the realm of fancy which he has led so delightfully, but we submit respectfully that until such suffering and hardship as are known to exist around us have been alleviated, talk of Henleys and Rotten Rows is apt to turn our thoughts to Plautus:

Is est amicus qui in re dubia re
fuit, ubi re est opus.*

GLORIFYING YOURSELF.

By Alicia Hart.

When you walk down the street
don't do it merely for the purpose of locomotion. Not merely because a straight line is the shortest distance between two places and you intend to get there in a hurry—gracefully or gracelessly!

Make walking an art. And enjoy it. If your lungs are crowded the clean, free air . . . or even the sooty, murky air, which after all is better than no air . . . won't get into your system. Your eyes will look downward instead of up, and your lips will droop since your whole body is reflecting a downward curve.

So first of all, look up. Make your body into a straight line, and keep it that way. For a practice stunt, stand against a wall, making sure that the small of your back touches the wall. Now put your weight forward on the balls of your feet. And walk! Some inner urge will make your steps light and free. But when you throw your weight backward you add years to your posture, and years are a drag in walking.

Imagine that an invisible string has been tied to the top of your head, while you were standing in that slim, upright position. Pretend that it is there so industriously that you feel it pulling your hair until the scalp tingles. Now, with the string doing its uplifting stunt, start to walk. Your shoulders can't sag.

Don't merely throw back your shoulders in a military gesture.
You will be stiff if you do. You will defeat your own ends. You want grace, you know. And freedom. And they come in an easy, non-chalant posture that knows its way home or down any street.

Try not to have any parcels to carry when you are taking long walks. Let your arms hang.
There is a certain relaxation that comes from this position which aids the circulation and does improving things to eyes and cheeks and lips.

Walk as though you are somebody important, not as though you are just a drab individuality in a crowd.

Showing Off the Shy Child

Are you shy? Are you sensitive? Do you shrink from strangers? Do you have to force yourself to go out and meet other people beside your most intimate friends?

If you are any or all of these things you know what real misery means, because you not only are unhappy at the time, but live in almost constant dread of having to force yourself to do things. Such forcing makes you nervous, takes it out of you so to speak, and leaves you exhausted. Not only that, but lest people discover this quality in you, you overact, over-talk, overdo everything. It is almost as though you were trying desperately to touch something in them that would react favourably to yourself.

Shy people, for this reason, are likely to be soft, to be ingratiating, and even to be too sympathetic at times.

"Selfish Generosity"

Some of the most sympathetic people in the world, the most generous, the most altruistic, are often so from selfish urges. Unconsciously selfish, or egocentric at least, from deep underlying defences sent out by the mind.

Let us now turn our attention to the children. Why are so many children shy? If you are shy now, you were so as a child. What caused it?

To tell the truth, many babies develop this contra-social feeling in their cradles when they are so new and so tiny it would seem impossible for them to have any sensations—at all except pain or hunger. The child establishes his general attitude to the world very early.

I believe most shyness is developed too early to do much about it, but on the other hand a great deal of it is a direct result of treatment. The baby that is surrounded by too many people, or that it laughed at, will suddenly withdraw into himself and set up a defence wall. He will cry if strangers come in, or pick him up.
Sometimes he will cry if any of the family pick him up, except his mother or nurse.

As these little people begin to develop, to play, run about, become real members of the family, their troubles begin in earnest.
They are at the cute age when they are exploited like prize puppies—always on exhibition. Their antics are broadcast to the neighbours, their unconscious little gestures developing naturally day by day delight the family, and they cannot perform the simplest action without having it passed around and publicized.

Don't Show Off the Child

Don't do it. If the baby has a tendency to shrink away from the world, it is only putting a sharper edge on the pattern.

Never mention his shyness to him or anyone. Never force him to meet strangers by making him the centre of attention. Yes, they may be about, but let him learn to lose his fear of them, to accept them as he would the furniture.
Never laugh at him, or fuss over him, or call attention to what he does. And never, never make him show off, no matter what age he is.
It is too cruel.

Shyness can be in a great measure overcome, actually, I mean, not merely by posing if wisdom and act are put to work by the family. It will save years of suffering and may mean health instead of breakdown later on.

BY H. W. CORLEY

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

MONA MORAN, recentist in a well-known street law office, is in love with BARRY TOWNSEND, rich and socially prominent. She met Barry through STEVE HACA, RELL, her childhood sweetheart, who has returned to New York after three years' absence. Steve has been in South America where, largely by chance, he has become associated with Barry, owner of a diamond mine long believed worthless. Together they have made this mine pay and are now business partners. Steve owns a huge diamond called "The Empress of Peru." LOTTIE CALIT, fashion model, Johna Mona, Barry and Steve on several dinner and dancing engagements. Mona's brother, HUB, becomes involved with gangsters who plan to steal the diamond. Steve suspects this, traps Hub and when he confesses helps him escape to South America where he is to have a job at the mine. Some time later Barry invites Mona, Lottie and Steve to spend Sunday at his uncle's palatial country home. They make the trip in Steve's roadster. Barry is a delightful host. However, when he and Mona are together he fails to propose.

CHAPTER XIX

Mr. Faxon joined the young people at luncheon. Elizabeth, Barry's sister, had telephoned, who said, Elizabeth, marrying early, was the mother of four frolicsome children and kept in daily touch with the Townsend ménage yet Mrs. Faxon mentioned her call as if it were an occasion.

"Want anything?" Barry inquired.

"Just to say hello. And to suggest that you might like to drive over for dinner this evening."

"That reminds me!" Barry exclaimed. "I thought it might be a good stunt to have dinner at the camp. There are steaks around somewhere, aren't there? Jean could make—"

"Splendid!" Mrs. Faxon said delightedly and took the reins of preparation out of Barry's hands. "I'll send Jimmy down to get the place warm and dusted."

Turning to Mona she went on, "You should feel duly flattered. Barry shows the camp only to his closest friends. I've known of people to hint for weeks—"

"It's my private thinking place," Barry admitted.

After luncheon the four piled into Barry's roadster and made a tour of the countryside. They stopped for tea at a small inn and when they returned to the motor car Barry drove with Mona beside him. Steve and Lottie, in the rumble seat, were apparently deep in some gay secret. Steve's chuckles, punctuated by Lottie's high-pitched chatter, reached Mona in the front seat.

The car ran smoothly along the highway, dipping with the hills, rising again amid rows of oaks and maples. It glided past the carefully checked meadows that made up the well-groomed estates of the rich.

Here all was luxury—no huddled towns of tiny houses, no glaring billboards, no small shops.

As the road twisted and turned the sinking sun reddened, danced ahead of them, danced to the left, then the right again and finally disappeared, as if to terminate the pleasant game of "hide and seek" they had been playing. Almost immediately they were back at Twillands, returning by a new road. Dusk was settling in the trees.

The girls ran upstairs, laughing and chatting.

"Hey you!" Barry called.

"That's for me," explained Lottie. "Didn't I tell you he always calls me that?" She turned and said, "What?"

"Hey you! Dinner is broiling. Come on!"

Mrs. Faxon had gone ahead with Jimmy and Jean and the huge basket of supplies. Mona and Lottie, Steve and Barry, set out to follow over the gently freezing road, then struck out crosslots for the camp.

On the verandah the appetizing odour of broiling steak greeted them. Jimmy, kneeling before the flame, was guarding the piece de resistance tenderly but relinquished his place immediately to Barry. Jean, smiling from the kitchen door, was mixing salad dressing. The camp now was warm, cosy and delightful.

Mrs. Faxon, busying herself at the table, called them at last to sit.

When they had finished eating they turned on the radio and danced. Mona, puzzled at first, decided that Barry was avoiding her. When he addressed her he seemed to keep the conversation on a general note. The servants departed carrying the emptied humper and Mrs. Faxon, from her cretonne fire-seat, beamed on the little party approvingly.

"She likes us," Mona thought. And she was right. Mrs. Faxon thought Mona exquisite and her friend Lottie, refreshing and amusing.

"Barry should have more good times like this," Mrs. Faxon was telling herself. Loyal to each, the dissension between Barry and his uncle worried her. She did her best to help each of them arrive at a more complete understanding.

At last all of them left the little camp wrapped in darkness and silence. Mona thought, as she took Steve's arm, that the whole day had been over too soon. Lottie walked with Barry and he told her of the southern cross, of the tropics, and the lunar rainbow he had seen once in Port-of-Spain.

"Everyone was excited about the lunar rainbow, I remember. Steve and I had gone to bed. The night was lighted by the whitest moonlight I had ever seen and after a while it began raining. I awoke, heard a noise in the hotel court, got out of bed and saw two natives knifing each other down below. Beyond, above the houses across the street, was the rainbow—a faint arc of colour. When I mentioned it next morning everybody was much more excited about that than they had been about the murder. Killings were frequent enough but lunar rainbows were rare!"

As Mona drew on her hat before the mirror she thought with a pang that in a scant quarter of an hour she would leave this delightful place. How easy her entrance had been and how simple her departure! Another 15 minutes and then an exit through the door. She might never enter Barry's life again!

"Miss Dowse calling," he said. Presently Barry reappeared and caught Mona's hand in his own. There was no one else in the hall and he drew her into the drawing room.

"Does it make any difference to you that Steve is my friend?" he asked. "I mean, do you like me any better because of that?" His eyes, looking into hers, were troubled. "You didn't like me at first at the office, did you?" Barry went on.

Mona drew her hand away gently. "Of course I like you," she said promptly though a trifle shakily.

She had wanted to see Barry alone. The moment was here now and she hardly knew how to meet it.

"I want to ask you something, Mona," Barry went on. "I've asked Steve. I've asked your loquacious little friend, too, and now I'm going to ask you. They've both encouraged me a little in the hope—"

"Hope?" the girl's face was scarlet.

"The hope that I'm not intruding. That the situation between you and old Steve isn't serious. If I hang around a bit—dine with you—take you out once in a while—am I butting in? Hang it—are you in love with Steve?"

Mona raised her eyes and looked at him squarely.

"Steve has never asked me that, Barry," she said.

"You see," he went on earnestly, "if Steve were engaged to a girl and I wanted to take her out to dinner he would cheerfully postpone the wedding ceremony and persuade her to go with me! That's Steve!"

"He thinks a great deal of you, I know."

"And he thinks a great deal of you, Mona, too! Once more Barry grasped her hand eagerly.

MR. J. D. BUSH'S ROTARY ADDRESS

"What China needs to-day is a laboratory theatre to make a critical survey of her own classical drama as well as the spoken drama of the West, in order to meet the needs of a new generation," said Rotarian J. D. Bush in an address on Chinese Drama at the Rotary Club dinner at Gloucester Building yesterday.

Rotarian Bush said the beginnings of Chinese drama like those of Medieval drama in England were closely connected with religion. Just as the source of Greek drama could be traced to ritual dances performed in the springtime before the shrines of Dionysus, so going back to the country days in China, you will find dancing held a conspicuous place on occasions of sacrifice or ceremony. According to an authority on Chinese music, "the dancers are grave performers who by their attitudes and evolutions convey to the eye feelings of veneration and respect, which are expressed by the words."

In tracing the evolution of Chinese drama, we should also take note of the 305 poems of the Chow Dynasty. These songs may be classified into three groups, "Feng," "Ya," and "Song." The first group "feng" were songs of the people and the second and third consisted of songs of the court. The second group "ya" resembled much the minstrel songs of Europe—mainly ballads narrating the exploits of the kings and for the amusement of the royal guests. All three types of songs were based on historical episodes. These songs were sung to the accompaniment of some musical instrument. Thus poetry, singing and music were intimately associated with each other and later acting as well.

Prior to the coming of literary drama or plays, there must have been court minstrelsy and itinerant jesters, as in early European history, who amused the masses with song and with the recitations of vulgar dialogue. Many of you may recall seeing in the streets of Hongkong blind musicians of both sexes playing in the quiet of the night on string instruments. They represent to us what remain of those early jugglers, acrobats, jesters and minstrels.

It was not until 500 A. D. however, that dancing, music, action and dialogue were welded into some sort of dramatic games, resembling the minstrelsy in Europe during the ninth and tenth centuries, who in their buffoonery performed dramatic skits. Drama and literature certainly did not meet until the Tang Dynasty (618-906) A. D. Then during the Sung Dynasty (960-1279 A. D.) dramatic literature became popular and vital contributions were made in the subject matter of drama and dramatic theory.

Yuan, Dramatists.

The dramatic poets of the Yuan Dynasty might not have been great thinkers or scholars. But like Shakespeare or Moliere, they were actors themselves and therefore had the knack of writing plays to please themselves as well as others. On the other hand, like Shakespeare too, these Yuan dramatists brought forth their plays without losing touch with their audiences and sensitive to most current things of the time that would appeal to the masses, courtiers, citizens, light ladies and bullies in their diversity of tastes.

"For ill can poetry express, Full many a tone of thought sublime,
And painting, mute and motionless,
Steals but a glance of time.
But by the mighty actor brought,
Illusion's perfect triumphs come;
Verse ceases to be airy thought,
And sculpture to be dumb."

No dramatists or playwrights, ancient or modern, would appeal to popular imagination, if they did not possess the knowledge of life and if they did not master the technique of making good use of the varying influences of their surroundings. The part reflects the whole and vice versa. Shakespeare's plays, thirty-four of them, in his day were so lively and amusing because he knew exactly how to carry with him his audience, refined and unrefined, into the unfamiliar regions of expressions and emotions. So in the same manner, the Yuan dramatists writing their plays in colloquial Chinese could arouse our feeling and charm us with characterised speeches. Hence the 119 extant Yuan plays were undoubtedly some of the finest literary productions in Chinese dramatic literature.

The dramas of the succeeding dynasties like Ming (1368-1643) and Ching (1644-1911) are also significant in the sense that they were founded on romantic plays and because they were entirely free from the orthodox technique. The dramatic works of these two periods, like those of Yuan, are regarded as equally important classics.

Chinese "Gilbert and Sullivan"

The Ming dynasty brought about certain dramatic changes, in that the northern style of musical drama was displaced by the southern style, which was called K'un Ch'u. The Ming dramatists may well be called the Chinese Gilbert and Sullivan. One of the main features was the liberty taken at this period to use the local dialects in the librettos and speeches.

I have not the time to enter into details on the drama during the Ming and Ching dynasties. Suffice it to say that subsequently the popular theatre grows side by side with the classical dramas. From first to last, the Manchu Imperial house and princely families shared the delight of the masses for the National drama. Whilst in Peking, I had the rare privilege of seeing a historical play performed by a galaxy of old famed actors of the Empress Dowager's days within the Presidential Palace. It is said that theatricals were indispensable accompaniment in the court festivals before the fall of the last dynasty. Those of us who have seen the talents of high order in the theatre within the palaces and in Peking itself could visualise the glory that was.

Manchu Period and Pi Huang.

After the middle of the Manchu period, the popular Chinese Gilbert and Sullivan opera "K'un Ch'u" fell into decay and gave way to another new type of dramas. These dramas were especially free from embellishment and composed of materials taken from the literary plays or popular novels, familiar legends, native tales and the like. This school of musical drama first gained popularity in Anhui Province known as the Pi Huang. Its popularity with the Chinese playgoers has been maintained up to the present day. Pi Huang now easily obtainable in gramophone records was made popular largely by the famous Empress Dowager of the last dynasty. It has won such wide appeal also by virtue of the ease with which the lines are learned and the melodies sung. "More over its stories are familiar to all, cultured and uncultured," says a Chinese writer. "Its words are to be articulated in the manner of the middle Yangtze Valley, a dialect which may be easily acquired. Its stage conventions and technique of acting are well known to the audiences." In reading the Chinese drama, it should be borne in mind the difference between classical edition and the edition as interpreted by the actor himself. They are often very different one from the other. The same may be said of the Western plays. Think of the hectic versions we see sometimes in cinema of the plays and dramatised novels.

Attempts to Westernise.

According to Western standard, the existing Chinese plays in North or South may be classified as musical comedies, historical operas, musical farces, burlesque and operettas. Prose or non-musical dramas were not known to China until comparatively recent date. When the literary movement was not afoot in 1919 by my friend and former colleague in the Peking National University, Dr. Hu Shih, serious attempts were made to introduce Western drama into China. Problem plays of Ibsenite and Shawian fame were then diligently translated into Chinese. At the time, I had a hand in teaching such problem plays as Widower's Houses, Mrs. Warren's Profession, and discussed with the students the subject matter of Ibsen's Ghost. In those days of literary renaissance, I noticed that there was a reapt body of enthusiasts who encouraged the writing and acting of new dramas in institutions like Tsing Hua College in Peking, Nan-Kai in Tientsin, St. John's University in Shanghai and many others.

Since the Republic, it may be pointed out that there has been abundant evidence of experimental activity in modernizing the Chinese plays on Western models. This process of modernization is carried on within and without the academic circles. Critical study of the Chinese drama and dramatic problem is still engaging the attention of modern Chinese scholars to-day, more especially those who have returned from Europe and Japan. I suppose the persistent inquiry into what's wrong with the theatre will go on for some years to come. Publications of books and periodicals are ever on the increase from day to day. During the last ten years many of the masterpieces from the West have been translated. Many have gone abroad to investigate into the various theatrical arts and crafts. Imperceptibly the tendency is no doubt toward the reorganization of the theatre to a nearer alignment to the social term of the age.

Joyous Motherhood!

What heart-thills does not motherhood bring when baby is lovely, healthy and happy! This indeed is the fulfilment of woman's destiny.

But what heart-ache she suffers when the little one is ailing, puny and backward! And the entire household is unhappy when baby is ill. In countless homes all over the world, children have been made well, and parents relieved of anxiety, by Baby's Own Tablets. This splendid juvenile health-safeguard offers both relief and protection from childhood illnesses. Administered at the first signs of "off colour" they set matters right before serious developments can take place. Baby's Own Tablets comprise a safe and efficient prescription devised by a highly qualified medical practitioner of special experience in children's ailments. They are pleasant to taste and appearance, which removes the difficulties which often attend "medicine time."

Baby's Own Tablets are a gentle and non-gripping corrective for constipation, stomach and bowel troubles generally. The tablets quickly relieve a croup, colic, convulsions, check diarrhoea and expel worms, whilst during teething they are especially valuable, easing the pains with almost miraculous speed though they are guaranteed under public analyst's certificate to contain neither opiate nor narcotic.

Safe for the youngest or most delicate baby, and an absolute necessity where there are children below the age of seven, Baby's Own Tablets should be kept handy by all parents.

NEW WAYS FOR A NEW ERA

"The country needs and, unless
I mistake its temper, the country
demands bold, persistent experimentation. It is common sense to take a method and try
it; if it fails, admit it frankly
and try another. But above all, try something." This paragraph comes from President Roosevelt's book, "Looking Forward," and it is an immensely
encouraging declaration of principle, capable of expansion to cover the world at large. It seems to set forth precisely the attitude
which statesmen must adopt
to-day. The world is not only struggling to climb out of a very deep depression. We have come,
as far as it is possible to tell, to
the end of an era in history.
Whatever we do in the future, it must be something new, something different. The old ways have proved their inadequacy,
and since we lack perfect wisdom, it seems a reasonable thing
to move ahead by a trial
and error method until we have found a new way
that will prove satisfactory.
It is a long time since the world has had a leader who demanded "bold, persistent experimentation"; it is a long time since our own temper has been
of a kind to support such a man. Ever since the war,
"Don't rock the boat" has been
the slogan. We have asked our leaders to keep their hands
off economic problems and let well alone. This worked, or seemed to, as long as things were indeed well enough. But when they went from bad to worse, and from worse to worst, it was a catastrophic policy. That we have at last discarded it, and have statesmen who have discarded it, is perhaps the most encouraging fact on the horizon. No one knows just what is going to get
the world finally out of the depression. No one knows just how, having got out, we shall avoid slipping back again. We can do nothing other than make experiments. Some of them, in all probability, will not work, but that does not matter. The only chance is to keep trying,

over and over again, until we find what we want. In this lies the main hope of the World Economic Conference. One country acting independently
can do little or nothing. Simultaneous action on agreed measures can alone provide a fair chance for the experiments proposed in what we might term
"applied economics." If the
measures are adopted swiftly
and methodically, the world may be rescued in double-quick time
from the ruins which appear to be encroaching daily. A realistic appreciation of the facts is all that is necessary and President Roosevelt will do much to hasten understanding if he carries out his plan to visit London
as a guest at the World Economic Conference. In the light of the example he has set in the United States, his presence should be an inspiration. But
the war debts problem must
first be removed from the path, temporarily, at least. A moratorium on the June payments in return for the tariff truce the President is seeking would appear to be an adequate quid pro
quo.

More Magisterial Justice

Several police court decisions
recently invite us to believe that some of our magistrates have a fixed idea that local ordinances
must be satisfied to the letter, irrespective of extenuating circumstances. Last week we called attention to a case where a young boy was harshly punished
for a technical offence, where justice, without mercy, was inexorably applied. Yesterday came another illuminating example of the Shylock demands
of the Law. A banisher, who declared he was employed on a
ship undergoing repairs in dock was arrested at Shaokwan. He had no right to be there. Sentence of six months' imprisonment was imposed. Doubtless the worthy magistrate brought to bear his incontestable knowledge of the Ordinance governing this offence and its usual requirements in the form of punishment, but one looks in vain for
any human touch in the handling of the case. The police did not contest the statement that the
man's ship was in Hongkong, undergoing repairs. But the magistrate decided that he should be treated in line with
other offenders, and apparently disregarding the fact that it would cost the man his job, and
probably turn him from a man
endeavouring to earn an honest living into an unemployed coolie with a dangerous hate of the law and all it stands for, sent
him to prison. If Hongkong
justice is to have no elasticity,
admit of no extenuating circumstances, or the human element
in its practice, then it would seem that the Englishman's best loved boast will not stand too
close an examination.

The Test of Democracy

"The test of democracy," said
Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, in a recent survey of world affairs,
"is its capacity to listen to argument." It is a question of understanding, of "capacity to listen" to reason, from first to last.
An informed public will not only
be likely to return the best representatives, but will constitute
a body of sound opinion to whose criticism legislators and administrators will defer. A better intercommunication of ideas between governors and governed
is the crying need of modern democracy—an improved technique
of understanding. But if this is so difficult to attain within the limits of a single nation, how much more difficult in intercourse between nations. Two nations may speak different languages, as French and German, or they may both speak English, but the connotation of
political words will not be exactly the same in England and America. But there are greater difficulties than that presented by language. There are different circumstances, different local
needs, and different prejudices
in the light of which words and arguments assume different meanings. The test of democracy is "capacity to listen"
to reason—the people of one country endeavouring to put
themselves at the viewpoint of another country.

RIGHT WAY TO CLEAR SLUM AREAS

By ALFRED C. BOSSOM, M.P.

Signs abound that both the central and the local authorities of England are about to renew the attack upon the slums.

They cannot do so with any real
and lasting effect unless the nature
of the problem before them is rightly understood and unless some broad and pivotal principle, as applicable to London as to Birmingham, to Glasgow as to Manchester,
is invoked to deal with it.

Slum clearance is popular every-
where except among slum dwellers.
They often dislike being moved.
They have become used to their
quarters and attached to them.
The neighbourhood has grown familiar to them. Their friends
are there, their school, their favorite public-house, and the policeman at the corner is a known
and trusted personage. Above all,
they are near their work.

MOVING REPUGNANT.

To uproot them from all these associations and conveniences and
to dump them down in a strange locality that resents their intrusion as much as they themselves
resent the wrench from their old habitations is to cause a social upheaval that reformers may welcome, but that its supposed beneficiaries find most frequently repugnant.

They fight against it for all they are worth. They get out injunctions; they invoke legal aid; they cling with passion to the less responsible home to them as much as his suburban villa represents home
to the City clerk, or the manor
house to the squire.

Then, again, the slum landlords
are for the most part content with things as they are. They draw rents for properties that ought to be wholly untenable; there is usually a case to be put up before any dwelling is officially condemned,
and the law is there, always tender towards existing rights, patient as regards delay.

THE QUICKER WAY.

The result is that it takes about ten years and a huge effort finally
to clear a slum area in London and to rehouse its inhabitants. Nor is there any guarantee under our pre-scent unworkable piecemeal procedure that the families removed
will be rehoused in their own
neighbourhood, or that overcrowding
in the same locality will not at once
begin to breed fresh slums.

I believe there is a better, a quicker, and a more economical way
of tackling this problem.

In London and in the provincial
centres the measure of what ought to be done in the way of slum
clearance has been pretty well
taken. That is to say, it is accurately known what districts and
how many houses call for demolition and reconstruction, and the numbers of people that these processes will involve.

This should make it feasible for
each authority to work out a comprehensive scheme embracing its entire area and proceeding by a fixed time-table. Such a plan of operations would in itself tend greatly to reduce the costs and the

inconveniences and uncertainties of our present methods.

But at the centre of the businesslike and systematic campaign
which is essential to any true victory I would place the idea of clearance by a new method of
"decanting." That, indeed, is the pivot on which the whole movement
must turn.

Let me make its mechanism and
significance clearer by the humble analogy of the hotel bath. It is used by many people; it is cleaned
and prepared for guest after guest;
yet it remains a single, manageable
convenience functioning at the
minimum of cost.

DECANTING CENTRES.

Similarly I am convinced that the key to slum clearance is the erection, in the neighbourhood of the tenants who are about to be dis-
possessed, of up-to-date tenement
houses to which they can be moved
and from which they will return to
the new buildings that meanwhile
will have been put up on their old sites.

These up-to-date tenement
houses, these decanting centres,
would be of the appropriate size to meet the requirements of the locality. They might accommodate
no more than 250 people; they might also accommodate double or quadruple that number. The point is that, being used over and over again, being cleaned and done up
after occupation by each fresh batch
of tenants from the slums, they
could handle a population out of
all proportion to their actual dimensions—just as one hotel bathroom
may provide baths for a score of
people a day.

Some plan of this kind has been
tried at Amsterdam and with the most encouraging results. I suggest that it is universally applicable
and should be adopted throughout
the whole of the United Kingdom.

Suppose that the matter on hand
is that of pulling down and rebuilding a slum area containing
2,000 people. A model tenement house is erected near by to serve as a decanter. It holds, say, 500 people, and that number is drafted into it. The moment they leave the slums their old quarters are demolished and rebuilding begins. In a very few months a block is ready for occupation, the "decanter" is emptied, cleaned, and renovated and
another detachment of 500 takes possession, while the first batch is back on its old site but no longer in
a slum.

SAVING OF TIME.

By repeating this operation four times a population of 2,000 can be rehoused—and this with the minimum disturbance to the routine of
their daily lives, at a great saving
of time and with the least possible
expense to the ratepayers. And
at the end of it the "decanter"
would still remain and could be used by permanent tenants.

There is another advantage in
this method which those who are
experienced in the realities of life
in the slums will be quick to appreciate—namely, the comparative
ease with which in a "decanter" the
tenants can be introduced to modern household appliances and conveniences and encouraged in the right use of them.

"Now, remember, the gentleman seated next to Mr. Wells is his very best client, so please don't spill anything on him."

The Very Idea!

THIS WATER SHORTAGE

By Edward "Waterman" Kelly.

IT seems that there is another shortage of water in Hongkong.

We remember the last
water shortage we were in.
It was in the great wide open spaces where men were mean.

There had only been a hundred inches of rain in six months,
and the place was so dry we
couldn't wear boots because the
tongues always hung out.

We used to get our water by
camel team from Oodnadatta.
Every time the camel team arrived
the whole town would get drunk
at the pub.

"What'll you have?" we'd ask
Pete.
"Oh, I'll drink mine neat," he'd
say.

It was too strong for us, though.
We'd have to break ours down with
a dash of whiskey.

To get rid of the morning after
the night before feeling next morning, we'd take a couple of aspirins, washed down with gin.

To obtain water for washing the glasses, the scullery maids used to peel onions over the kitchen sink.
Hence the expression, "Well, fer
weepin' in the sink!"

But getting back to Hongkong.
We understand that the government will have plenty of water
when they complete the Shing Mun Dam. Conversely the public will have plenty of Dams until they get water. So everybody ought to be satisfied. Personally, we intend to stick to soda.

SEZ YOU.

Beer bung boom boosts business in Berwind, W. Va. Buying bigger and better bungs brings bright burst of balm to
the bank-burdened.

Coldest spot in the world is Verhoyvansk, where it gets 95 below zero. Imagine trying to pronounce it with your teeth chattering.

Some of those frozen assets undoubtedly froze so easily because they had been well-watered.

man's fancy lightly turns to
thoughts of unrestricted balances, double liability, and deductions for minor dependents.

A poet's work is but the reflection of his mind, says one of them. Maybe that accounts for all the blank verse.

We don't mind paying the fiddler after our spree of the past few years, but are we going to have to pay the whole blooming orchestra?

Somehow, you're pretty apt to
feel low after a high old time.

O BLOOMING ROSE.

There is still one pale rose blooming in the garden; one faint
memory of the days that are dead,
of the greenly that have gone the
way of all flesh.

And the other day, being full of sentiment and sweet drowsing (with raisins) and feeling rather sloppy,
we went out and mused most romantically upon that rose. In fact, we don't mind telling you, between friends, of course (but don't let it go any further), that we even started writing a poem about it.

Yes, we did. We mooned about,
and scratched our head, and came
over all Tennysonian; and after
a lot of internal struggling we took pencil and pen and wrote.

But just then a large and fierce lumbago came roaring down the
garden and bit us in the small of
my back; so that we staggered indoors, and crawled into bed, and
were totally unconscious for over eight hours. . . . Went off to sleep, you know.

You can see the difficulty we have
in living up to the title set out
blooming rose in the garden and the blooming lumbago under his anterior trouser-buttons trying to capture the right Spirit. . . . Not
the bottled stuff, but . . . Bah!

And that is what everybody else

MR. BOTTOMLEY'S PENSION

"NOT ENOUGH TO LIVE ON"

HIS CHAMPAGNE DAYS RECALLED

Mr. Horatio Bottomley in a few weeks ago became an Old Age Pensioner. Ten shillings a week from the State.

"Not enough to live on," he says, "and you, of course, may not see the necessity for my living at all. But I can think of one or two reasons why I should like to live a couple of years longer."

Mr. Bottomley is 73. He is living at present with friends in a Bloomsbury square, and has no immediate plans for his future. Prolonged illness has left him a little frail and deaf. "But my memory," he will tell you pointedly, "is still very good indeed."

He has little to say about this matter of the pension. "I can't talk about it," he said yesterday. "I haven't even got it yet. And I can't tell you about any future plans at present because I haven't made any."

"But I can't really believe," he smiled wryly, "that Mr. H. B. is going to end like this."

THE SPOON LAY IDEAL

He was sitting at a little table, wrapped in a warm dressing-gown fastened across the throat with a safety pin. His hair, long and white, lay over the collar of it.

"I'm not asking for sympathy," he said. "All the same, I've been inundated—flooded—with kind letters from hundreds of people. You know (or perhaps you don't know) you're too young to remember before the war, I had the biggest following of any man in England, and they haven't forgotten me."

"They write to me all the time, especially the people in Hackney—the constituency I represented in Parliament a good many years ago. They write and tell me about their children, and about what's wrong with the mangle."

He paused and then sighed and picked up his spoon again.

AN EXTRAORDINARY LIFE.

"I wouldn't like this to be the end of me," he said, "though I've had an extraordinary life. I could have got anywhere—been anything—if I hadn't made a fool of myself."

"But as to that," he added confidently, "if you knew all I know about certain matters, you wouldn't be ashamed to be seen sitting talking to me."

"I've been a great personality," he said simply, "and that's what the people like. Colour, something that stirs their imagination. A great personality doesn't have to be as pure as driven snow for the public to love him. That's what I was, a great personality."

"I promise you," he said, "that if a great meeting were advertised at the Albert Hall this week, to discuss—oh, anything—the present silly disarrangement situation, for instance, and the speakers were to be Lloyd George, Ramsay MacDonald, Baldwin, and Mr. Bottomley, I dare promise you I'd get the most enthusiastic reception and the greatest applause."

"That's an impudent thing to have said, but I believe it, and when I can still believe in my following to that extent, it's a rather wonderful thing."

"They used to call John Bull the 'soldier's bible,' you know," he said seriously. "Do you remember me in those days? I really did wonderful work."

"Kitchener said to me himself, several times, that I alone had made his Army. 'Nine out of ten in Kitchener's Army are Bottomley's men,' he said. Those were his very words."

JUST A NAME.

"Yes..." he said, his voice dropping rather oddly, "I've sent thousands of them to their graves." His confidence seemed suddenly to have deserted him. "So much has happened since," he said, "I was silent. After a pause: 'I've been doing a little work in cinema' he said without bitterness, 'giving little talks on my career...' but I doubt if I'm more than a name to the younger generation. They didn't know what I was talking about."

"I don't want it to end like this," he said. "I don't, in many ways. I've been several kinds of a fool, but I might not have come off so badly if I hadn't been so loyal to my friends. That's one of my few—very few—principles and virtues."

"And the public," he said carefully, "are still my friends, I think. 'Whatever his lapses,' they say, 'Mr. Bottomley did a lot of good in his time.'"

Tragic Irony of A Woman's Fate

KILLED WHERE SHE SAVED HUNDREDS

A tragic twist of fortune's wheel caused the death of an 86-years-old woman, who for many years had voluntarily directed traffic at the dangerous cross-roads outside her house at Clifton, near Biggleswade, thereby preventing many accidents and saving many lives.

She was killed by a 6-ton motor-lorry which crashed into her house and came to rest with its radiator against the mantelpiece of her front room.

The woman was Mrs. Emma West, of Broad-street, Clifton.

Her home formed a blind corner at the junction of the main road from Bedford to Baldock and a much-used by-road.

WARNINGS TO MOTORISTS

Following a number of fatal accidents at the cross-roads, Mrs. West appointed herself voluntary traffic director when the local police man or road scout was not available.

One villager said that Mrs. West must have saved hundreds of lives by her public-spirited action.

Mrs. West had just taken a loaf of bread from her baker, and was placing it in a cupboard in her front room when the crash occurred.

The lorry swerved and went right through the front room, making a gap reaching above the bedroom floor level. It also tore a hole in the wall dividing the front room from the back.

Mrs. West was buried in the debris. The driver of the lorry and his mate escaped with cuts and bruises.

OFFICIAL WOUNDED AT SOMERSET HOUSE

Struggle with A Visitor

Following an extraordinary affair in Somerset House a uniformed attendant, Mr. Joseph Bastable, aged 54, was removed to Charing Cross Hospital suffering from a wound, apparently caused by a knife.

A man entered the room where the public search for wills. As is usual a number of people were there, in addition to officials.

Shortly afterwards there was a scuffle. Members of the public and other officials went to Mr. Bastable's assistance.

For a few minutes there was uproar. Mr. Russell, an official, rushed into the room where the struggle had taken place, but seeing that he was not needed, ran at top speed into the Strand, where he dashed through the traffic and spoke to a traffic policeman, who promptly ran into Somerset House with Mr. Russell.

A crowd gathered at the entrance gates. Mr. Bastable's wound was a deep one, but his condition was stated to be not critical.

LUCK TURNED BY A SONG

STUDIO DRAMA OF HUNGER

The first gramophone record made by Danny Malone, a young Irish tenor, have been issued.

Behind that simple statement of fact is a story which conforms to a pattern found in many story books, but rarely in real life.

Danny Malone, a boy of 20, 1 ft. 10 in. tall, came to England, poor and hungry.

FAINTED IN STUDIO.

But work was as hard to find in London as in Australia, and calling vaguely at offices with little that he knew of to offer, was not a very promising way of finding it.

But Danny Malone's fairy godmother suddenly decided to wake up and take a hand in the game.

She led him to the office of Basil C. W. Dean, song-writer and music publisher, and arranged that, as a further chance, Danny Malone should sing for Mr. Dean. It took Mr. Dean just three minutes to ring up the B.B.C. and tell them he had found something unusual, and Danny Malone was first heard of when the newspapers reported that, following his first broadcast he had fainted of hunger in the studio.

But the fairy godmother was still looking after things.

THEN THE RECORDS.

It happened that the recording manager of the H.M.V. Gramophone Company heard that broadcast, and it took him only three minutes to ring up the B.B.C. to know more about the owner of this voice which was so amazingly like John McCormack's.

Danny Malone will not be hungry any more. Go to the nearest gramophone dealer and hear him sing "Believe me if all those endearing young charms" and "Mother Machree" and you will know why. And, by the way, take a few shillings so as to save yourself a second journey.

S O S RE-UNITES MAN AND WIFE

SEPARATED FOR 18 YEARS

The S O S broadcast asking Ernest William Nichol, a London comedian, with the stage name of Ernest Ford, to go at once to the Leicester City Hospital where his wife is lying dangerously ill reunited Mr. and Mrs. Nichol.

Mr. Nichol, who has been separated from his wife for about 18 years, heard the broadcast S O S, rang up the hospital at once for news and then took the first available train to Leicester.

He went direct to the hospital where he was met by his son, who lives in Humberstone-lane, Thurmaton, near Leicester.

Though Mrs. Nichol's condition was serious, she was able to recognise her husband.

Mr. Nichol, who had just come out of hospital after a serious illness, remained by her bedside hoping for a change for the better in his wife's condition.

Interviewed, he said that he and his wife parted 18 years ago and he had not seen her since he was in the London Scottish during the war.

The wedding will shortly take place between Mr. Arnaldo Guilherme Botelho, of 35, Granville Road, Kowloon, and Miss Beatrice Patricia Chou, of 95, Robinson Road, Hongkong.

Fourteen cases of small-pox with 44 deaths, one case of diphtheria with one death, one case of typhoid, three cases of meningitis with eight deaths and 76 deaths from tuberculosis, were reported to the health authorities last week. Of the total of 7,828, the maternity cases numbered 57.

A meeting of representatives of clubs, associations and other organisations interested will be held at the Public Works Department board room to-morrow afternoon at 5.15, for the purpose of forming a Children's Playgrounds Association. The object of the association will be to equip and manage play areas for children of the Colony for whom such facilities do not at present exist. Reports will be presented to the meeting and office bearers will be elected.

CROWN EVIDENCE NOT ADMITTED.

CONTINUATION OF CASE OF CUSTOMS OFFICER

Because the accused was not present when the chart markings were made on April 9, by Mr. C. H. Thompson, boarding officer, showing the relative positions of the Customs' launch and the Junk, following a report of an armed attack on the latter in Junk Bay on April 1, Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court yesterday afternoon refused this evidence to be admitted, at the resumed hearing of the charge of manslaughter of a Chinese girl, brought against Mark William Hallums, an officer of the Chinese Maritime Customs.

Mr. J. A. Fraser said the witness was in hospital at present, and it was doubtful whether he would be able to appear in Court, but in all probability he would be fit enough to appear at the Criminal Sessions.

His Worship said he objected because the accused was not present on board the Police launch when the markings were taken.

Mr. Fraser—I can't really see what the objection is, your Worship.

His Worship—I am sorry, Mr. Fraser, but I do.

The Magistrate pointed out that if Mr. Fraser liked he could do it all over again.

Later, the Crown prosecutor agreed with his Worship that the evidence of Mr. Thompson could not possibly be admitted. He agreed that the best course would be to take the markings over again with the accused.

Before the hearing commenced, Mr. Fraser said—A rising out of the point raised by my friend, regarding the admissibility of the statement, I think it is only fair at this stage to give notice that I intend to call other evidence to show that the accused was in charge of the launch at the time and that he fired the shot. Actually what the evidence is I cannot say, because I have not seen the witnesses.

Mr. Wynne-Jones—Do I understand that nobody was called from the launch at all, apart from the accused?

Mr. Fraser—No, there was another officer. I will call him and another person. It is only fair at this stage to tell the defence that such evidence will be called.

Junk-Master's Evidence.

Continuing his evidence, Ng Wing-lai, master and owner of the junk, said that when the second shot was fired the launch was about 50 fathoms away. The launch followed them to Yuenmun Pass. Witness sailed to Yuenmun typhoon shelter where he anchored. He came ashore and after finding his charterer they went to the Water Police Station. When the shooting took place there were 24 men, women and children aboard. The girl who was killed was Ng Koo, daughter of the steersman. On April 9 together with Inspector Rozeksky, he went on a Police launch and pointed out the positions to a European officer on board.

At this stage, Mr. Fraser mentioned that the European was Mr. Thompson, who was at present ill.

Witness stated the accused was not present, whereupon his Worship said he would not accept the evidence of Mr. Thompson later.

While Mr. Fraser was consulting Mr. Mackinlay for the defence, his Worship interposed, "Are you asking Mr. Mackinlay whether he has any objection, Mr. Fraser?"

Mr. Fraser—No. Will your Worship allow me a moment?

Mr. Fraser (later)—There is the possibility that Mr. Mackinlay may object to the evidence, because he was not representing the accused, but actually representing the Maritime Customs.

His Worship—I don't care whether Mr. Mackinlay objects. It is my objection, and I think it is a strong one. I will not accept that evidence because the accused was not there.

Mr. Fraser—We can do it again if necessary.

Replying to his Worship, witness said he made no retaliation after the shots were fired but simply waved his hand.

"Told by Inspector."

In further answer to his Worship, witness said he fixed the positions because he was told by the Inspector where they were.

Mr. Mackinlay—I was on that launch, representing the Maritime Customs. There was no question of the Police indicating the positions at all.

His Worship—It is what the witness has said, and I must write it down.

Mr. Fraser—That is so, your Worship.

The Crown prosecutor here mentioned that he was entirely in agreement with the Magistrate with regard to the evidence of Mr. Thompson. It could not possibly be admitted.

Ng Wing-sun, the steersman, gave evidence of a corroborative nature, and the hearing was adjourned to this afternoon.

TRADE PROPOSAL BY MR. RUNCIMAN

MIXED RECEPTION

London, May 2.

The proposal of Mr. Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Trade, to Mr. Matsudaira, that English and Japanese industrialists meet in London to discuss Empire trade, has met with a mixed reception in Manchester cotton trade circles.

Some guardedly approve of the proposal as an attempt to obtain an amelioration of the intense Japanese competition from which trade is suffering, but others criticise the invitation as an admission of weakness, and advocate higher tariffs against Japanese goods entering the Empire.

The alarm in Lancashire is illustrated by the unprecedented action of the Manchester Royal Exchange in granting the Cotton Trade League permission to obtain the signatures of members of the exchange to a petition urging the Government to prevent the exploitation of Empire markets by foreign nations.—Reuter's Special.

TAM KONG PAK SUSPENDED.

TILL SEASON ENDS WHO WILL FIGHT DOYLE?

SENIOR SHIELD FINAL SEQUEL

MEANS LOSS OF STAR PLAYER

Tam Kong-pak, South China Athletic's star inside left has been suspended from taking part in any football matches arranged by the Hongkong Football Association until the end of the season.

This decision was reached at an adjourned meeting of the Management Committee last night, and it means that Tam will not be able to appear in any further league or representative matches until after May 17, the current season closing on that date.

Tam's suspension is the sequel to his dismissal from the field by the referee in the Senior Shield final between South China and the South Wales Borderers on April 8.

The first hearing took place a week ago, but was adjourned pending the appearance before the committee of the referee and of certain spectators to give evidence.

GUilty OF MISCONDUCT.

These testimonies were given last night, when as a result, the committee found Tam guilty of misconduct towards one of the South Wales Borderers players.

The incident at the time caused considerable speculation among the onlookers. It occurred towards the end of the game, when Tam, then playing as third back, came into collision with Harris of the Borderers.

To many it appeared that the players exchanged blows, but the referee, who was near the scene had no hesitation in giving Tam marching orders.

CAN'T PLAY TO-DAY.

Tam's suspension comes into operation forthwith, which means that he will not be available against the Athletic this afternoon, neither will he be able to appear in any of his team's remaining league matches.

His suspension also means his absence from the Chinese Amateur Athletic Federation eleven to oppose the Hongkong Football Association team in the Governor's Cup on Saturday.

It is expected that Leung Tat-wing will be brought in the South China team for the rest of their league matches.

Inability to raise a team has forced St. Joseph's to postpone their First Division match with the Borderers scheduled for this afternoon, and as a result only one senior division game will be played.

IMPORTANT TIE.

This is an important tie, South China meeting Chinese Athletic for the second time of the season. The game will be played on the Club ground at 5.15 and if South China win nothing can stop them from capturing the championship.

At their meeting last week, the Athletic were decidedly unlucky to concede the points by the odd goal in three. On the other hand their amazing collapse against the Navy last Saturday does not encourage confidence in their ability to turn the tables to-day, and South China, even without Tam Kong-pak, should annex two more points.

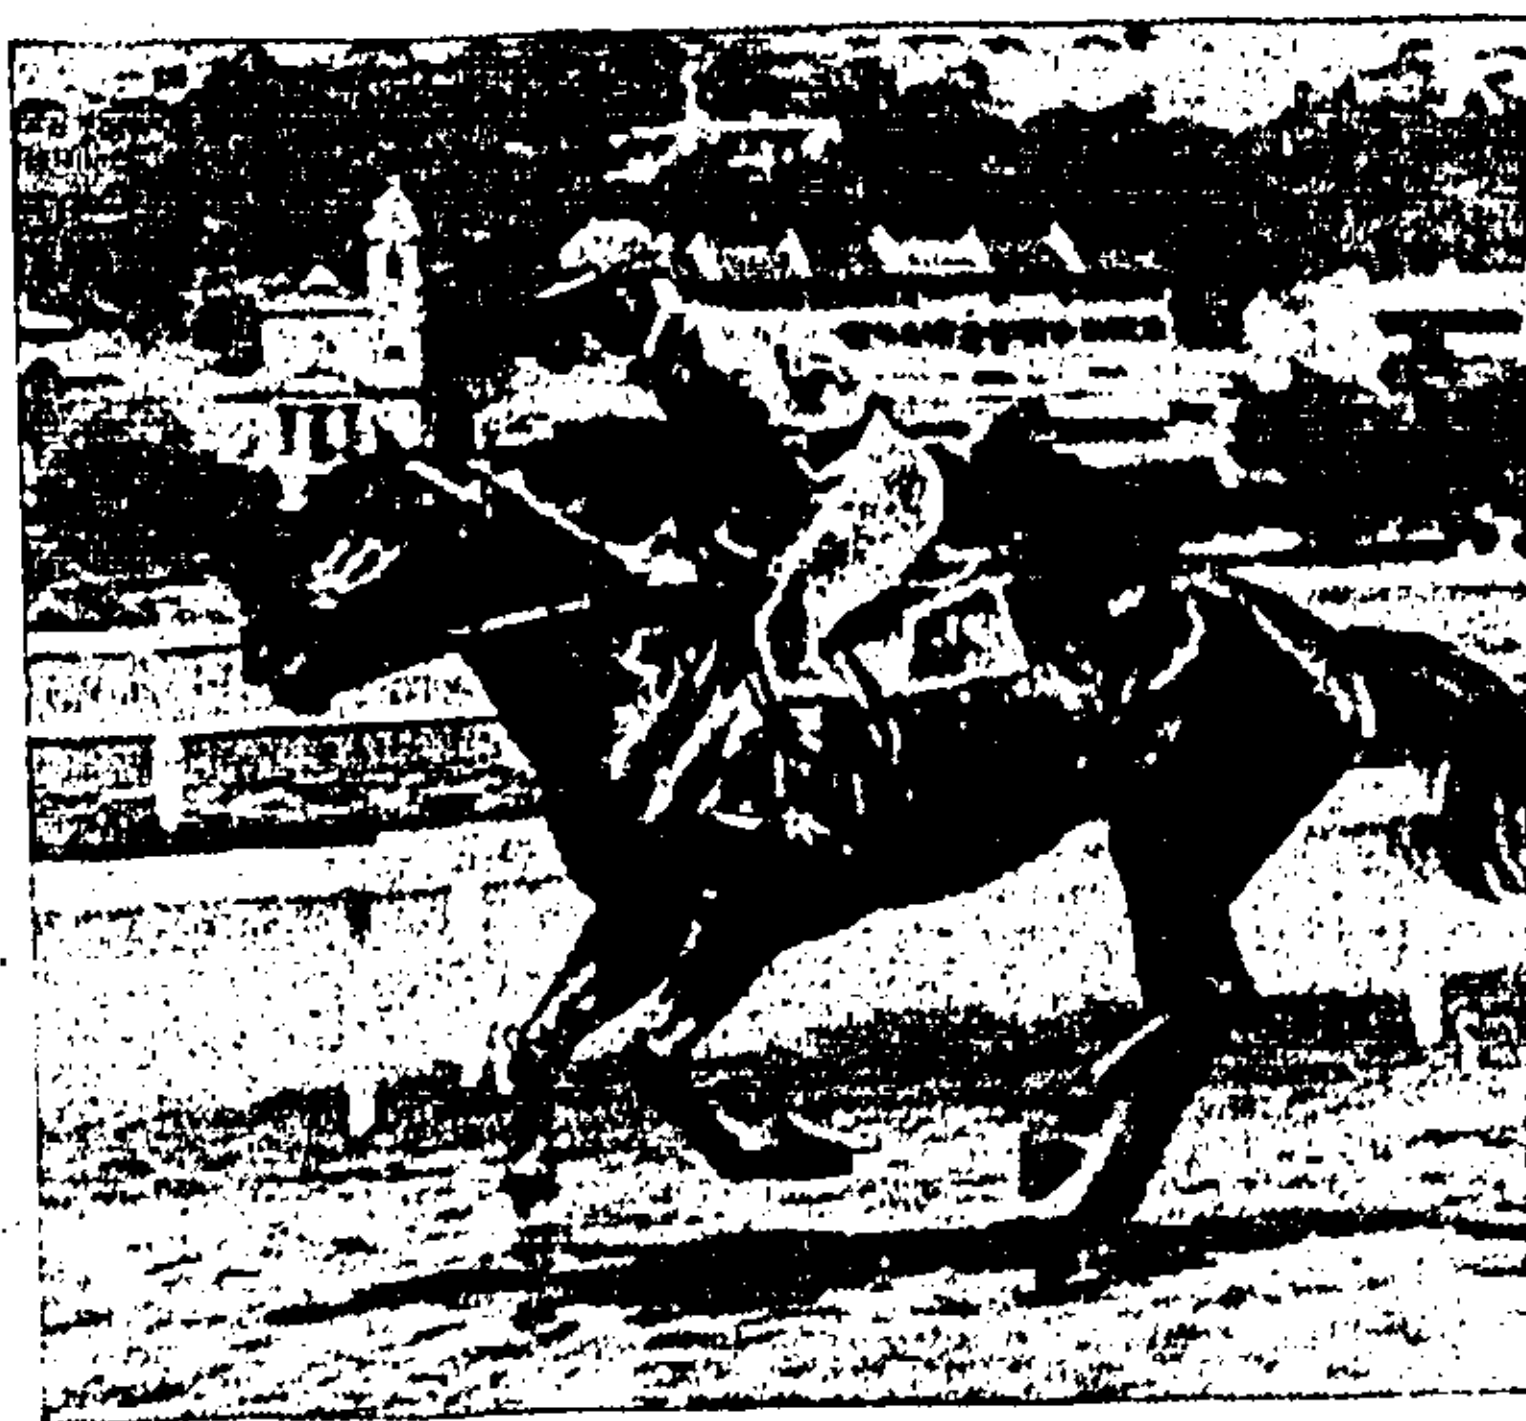

The other league match this afternoon is a Third Division tie between the Royal Engineers and R.A.S.C. at Chatham Road at 5.15.

LOCAL RACE PONIES.

Change in Classification Notified.

The following changes in classification are notified by the Hongkong Jockey Club:

Clever Sunderland Scheme

One very successful move has been introduced by Sunderland. It is worked by the centre forward and usually one of the inside forwards. When Gurney sees an attack developing down one wing he runs over to what is really a forward outside position near the side line and the ball is quickly pushed through to him. Often the ball beats the back and racing clear, Gurney compels either the other back or the centre half to come over and challenge him otherwise he would be left with a straight run through to goal. Even if the pass does not put Gurney in possession beyond the back he has the chance to collect the ball and beat him.

In the meantime, his wing forward on the opposite flank has come into the middle of the field knowing that Gurney's next move will be to pass right across to him. This pass only has to escape an opponent and the wing man can take the ball in his stride and go on into a shooting position.

It was this move which gave Sunderland one of their vital goals in their first cup tie with Derby County and it has produced many other goals. The Derby players were familiar with it and I believe that they had prepared plans to deal with it, but as I have said the movement caught them napping.

Like all schemes, if it is to be successful it must be carried out quickly. Gurney, of course, gives the cue as soon as he goes over to the wing position and the ball should be pushed through to him immediately. The pass can be made by the inside forward, the wing half or the outside man, but whoever puts the ball through should realize that speed in execution is the secret. If there is any delay it is almost certain that the centre forward will be tackled at once before he can collect the ball and use it in the manner he has indicated.

It is obvious that this move has been practised diligently and it is now carried out with a fine degree of perfection. As a matter of fact, most teams to-day have these favourite plans to confound their opponents and though they are known they often succeed.

Perhaps the most successful and important scheme that was ever worked was by West Bromwich Albion in the cup final three seasons ago when twice from the kick off they took the ball down the middle into the Birmingham penalty area without an opponent touching it. Indeed, their winning goal came from one of these audacious moves. Copyright: N.F.L.

SEA. ROWLES'S CLAIM

"MOST IMPROVED HEAVYWEIGHT"

Jack Doyle has gone to his native Ireland for another holiday whilst his managers are working their wits for all they are worth to find what is termed a suitable opponent for him to fight at Olympia on May 18.

The ordinary boxing follower would be able to suggest a string of names as long as your arm, but it is doubtful if any one of them would be regarded by Doyle's connections as the suitable opponent.

It is easy to understand where the difficulty comes in. The plain fact is that Doyle, through no fault of his own, has been given an entirely false position in the heavy-weight division. His fame is out of all proportion to his real standing as a boxer.

In case someone reminds me that Peterson and Pettifer, two novices, did very well at Olympia, not so long ago, I must point out that Peterson had the heavy-weight title at stake and the Lonsdale Belt was also thrown in, not to mention the daffodils and roses.

Peterson was offered the fight with Doyle for May 18, as well as sundry other engagements, and much ado was made of £5,000 being demanded. Peterson was not free to accept the match because he had already signed to engage in three open-air contests in Wales. The

CLAIMS OF ROWLES.

If the problem of Doyle's opponent is still calling for wet towels and aspirin I should like to suggest that the logical opponent stands out a mile. What about Seaman Rowles?

There is little doubt that the naval boxer is the most improved of all our young heavy-weights and would certainly be able to give Peterson plenty of trouble. He won the Crystal Palace tournament because he was the outstanding boxer in the competition. Since then he has shown marked improvement with each succeeding contest and he stands out as the man for Doyle.

GIRL TENNIS HOPE

MISS HEWITT AND WIGHTMAN CUP

When Miss Joan Ridley, the Suffolk girl, won the women's singles at the Peddington tournament last month, there ended one of the most remarkable weeks in women's competitive play seen for several years.

The eight ranked players were bowled over like ninopes, and the unranked player "came home alone." Miss Ridley beat Miss Healey (the No. 1 ranked player), Miss K. E. Stammers (the conqueror of Miss Betty Nuthall), and finally Mrs. King (better known as Miss Phyllis Mudford) by 6-3, 6-2.

What to make of it all will cause the L.T.A. selectors some anxious moments, for the form book has been torn to shreds. If the Wightman Cup team were chosen to-day Miss Ridley would "pick herself," but much may happen before England's chosen are nominated.

Miss Sheila Hewitt, the Hampshire girl, is the one to watch. She has beaten the stars from other countries, a very different thing from one English player beating another. It is firmly believed she is Great Britain's real Wightman Cup hope.

YOU MAY LOSE HIM!

5 YEARS FROM NOW

If pyorrhea attacks your gums HES yours now, and you're happy.
But in the next five years? Will he still admire you for your brilliant, flashing smile, your sparkling vivacity?

Or will you be a victim of pyorrhea, lose your smile, your energy, your vitality... and maybe him? Pyorrhea is that dreaded disease of the mouth that can do just those things. It attacks the gums, maybe for years before you know it! Then gums become soft, tender, lose their natural lovely pink. Teeth loosen and drop out or must be pulled out! Don't you take such chances when you can easily safeguard against any such tragic ending to your happy life. Start at once by brushing your teeth every morning and night, with Forhan's for the Gums.

This dentifrice is more than a tooth paste. It prevents pyorrhea, keeps the gums firm and healthy, and the teeth gleaming white and sound.

Forhan's for the Gums is the formula of R. J. Forhan, D.D.S., specialist in mouth diseases. It contains Forhan's Pyorrhea Astringent developed by Dr. Forhan and used by dentists throughout the world in the treatment of pyorrhea.

FOREIGN CABLE COMPANIES.

STATEMENT ON POSITION REGARDING CHINA

With reference to reports published recently in the foreign and Chinese newspapers to the effect that the "traffic offices" of the three cable companies at Shanghai, the Great Northern, Eastern Extension and Commercial Pacific Co., will soon be taken over and re-organised by officials of the Chinese Government Radio Administration, it is announced by the Cable Companies that these statements refer to the carrying into effect of the stipulations regarding the Companies' acceptance and delivery offices at Shanghai, contained in the new Agreements between the Ministry of Communications and the Companies, signed in Nanking on April 6.

The following statement is issued by the Cable Companies:

The term "traffic offices" used in the reports published in the press is misleading as it may give the impression that a change will be made as regards the Companies' operating offices or instrument rooms. This is incorrect. According to the new Agreements there will be no change whatever in respect of the said offices, and the working of the Companies' submarine cables, i.e. the actual telegraph service via the cables, will continue to be exclusively in the hands of the Companies themselves exactly as hitherto.

No Change in Service.

What is going to take place is that the Companies' offices for handling in and delivery of telegrams, i.e. the Companies' counter offices, at Shanghai will, in future, be managed in the name of the Bureau of International Telegraphs of the Ministry of Communications. The said offices, which have hitherto been under the exclusive control of the Companies themselves, will be formally handed over to the Bureau at an early date but, at the same time, it has been expressly stipulated and arranged that the working of the offices will be continued as hitherto so that, vis-a-vis the public, there will actually be no change as far as the acceptance and delivery service is concerned. The Bureau will take over the total staffs at present attached to the acceptance and delivery offices of the three Companies, and at the head of each of the three offices there will be a Chief appointed by the Ministry of Communications and an Associate-Chief (Danish, British and American respectively) nominated by the Company concerned, and the Chief and the Associate-Chief of each office will jointly deal with all matters relating to the acceptance and delivery of telegrams. Furthermore, assurances have been obtained from, and detailed arrangements have been made with, the Ministry of Communications ensuring that the acceptance and delivery of cablegrams will be continued exactly as hitherto and that the present high standard of efficiency will be maintained.

Misleading Statements.

It has also been repeatedly reported in the press that the Agreements between the Ministry of Communications and the Cable Companies contain stipulations regarding the "recovery" by the Ministry of land cables and overhead wires and that "the lines" of the Companies have already been taken over by the Ministry in conformity with the said stipulations.

These statements are likewise entirely misleading. The submarine cables of the Companies are—as is probably well known—not actually landed at Shanghai but at Woosung or Paoshan, and the connections between the said landing places and the Companies' operating offices at Shanghai are established by means of several underground cables—in former years overhead wires.

The said connections were established by the Companies themselves—naturally in agreement with the Chinese Telegraph Authorities—and were paid for and have all along been maintained by the Companies. Nevertheless, the Chinese Government has always claimed and insisted that, whilst remaining at the disposal of the Companies for their own use, all the said connections should formally be the property of the Government, and they were therefore ceded to the latter against the payment of a purely nominal sum (50 Mexican dollars for each underground cable).

For many years past the Chinese Government Telegraph Administration has thus been the nominal owner of all the underground cables and overhead wires in question, and what has actually happened now, is only that some of the old connections, including the overhead wires, which are no longer required by the Companies for the working of their cables, have been handed over to the said Chinese Government Telegraph Administration for the latter's own use, whilst a sufficient number of connections remain at the disposal of the Companies exactly as hitherto. At the same time arrangements have been made between the said Administration and the Companies to the effect that, in case of interruptions of the underground cables, the parties shall assist each other by providing emergency connections to take the place of the interrupted circuits. Altogether a perfectly reasonable and businesslike arrangement.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Destruction of Dogs

Sir,—I wish to draw the attention of the Authorities to the revolting practice adopted by the police in their work of shooting dogs found without a muzzle, to give one instance out of many that have been brought to my notice. This is the case of a small shaggy-haired terrier which had just strayed out from the owner's house and was cruelly shot at and its paw shattered by the bullet. The little animal managed to run home with its bleeding paw a monument of the cruel method adopted to enforce this regulation.

No-one will have any objection to the animals being captured and taken to Kennedy Town Kennels, and I know that the S.P.C.A. will take them from the Police and convey them to the Kowloon Home in order that the Authorities will not require to maintain the animals. Therefore I say, have a little mercy and give the animal a chance for its life. I grant all that may be said with reference to the danger from the terrible risk of rabies should a dog get loose and bite anyone. This warning should be sufficient to all dog owners to observe the regulations. But instructions should certainly be given to those responsible for the capture of the animals to observe the laws of humanity and give the dog a chance.

A cage is provided for the conveyance of the animal to the kennels where they may be examined. Therefore there is no necessity for the use of a gun.

"Of course. But Steve would persuade her that I was the best bet. He'd make her think—"

They were interrupted by a shout from without. Bright headlights threw the hedges into artificial daylight as the car smashed into the darkened space before the entrance. Steve, bareheaded, jumped from the driver's seat and raced to the door.

"You are the most beautiful thing in the world," Barry was saying softly when Steve appeared in the door.

Barry turned. "Well we don't seem to be getting anywhere," he said smiling. "Steve, as soon as I get this girl halfway agreeable to a dinner date you and Lottie have to break in and ruin everything!"

"You can date her up any time," Steve said. "I've got to be in town by 10:30. Come on—everybody ready?"

"All right then," Barry was saying in a low tone. "Have dinner with me Monday? Tuesday then? Confound it, Wednesday?"

"Call me Wednesday morning," Mona agreed and the three of them were off.

Monday and Tuesday passed for Mona in a glow of happiness. She was to see Barry Wednesday.

But Barry did not call on Wednesday. The telephone rang frequently. Five calls came for her but none was from Barry. At four o'clock Steve telephoned.

Barry was ill, he said. Out at Twickenham. Mrs. Faxon was afraid it was influenza.

The Bidding

South passed. West holding two and one-half tricks and a biddable club suit, opened the bidding with one club. North doubled. Under the writer's system of contract bidding, double shows at least three and one-half tricks. East passed and South took out with diamonds. West passed and North boldly jumped to three No Trump.

The Play

East has the opening lead. Not having a strong suit of his own to establish, he opened the top of his partner's suit, the seven of clubs. West played the three spot to discourage the club lead and North, the declarer, won the trick with the ten.

If the declarer could find the King of hearts in the West hand and the hearts were to break, he could go game. With an unfortunate distribution the hearts may be wrong, therefore he should immediately try to establish dummy's long diamond suit by leading the nine spot, and when East plays the seven, the five is played from dummy and West wins the trick with the king.

West can see that the declarer is endeavoring to establish his diamonds and that the queen of spades may act as an entry to dummy. He therefore abandons the club suit and shifts to a spade, but the declarer wins the trick with the ace and leads the four of diamonds. East plays the jack, declarer plays the queen from dummy, and West refuses to win the trick, trying to block off the diamond suit. The declarer should immediately return the ten of diamonds to establish this suit. West wins with the ace and East discards the six of hearts. West returns the three of spades which the declarer now allows to ride to dummy's queen East having played the ten. The two good diamonds are cashed from dummy, West discarding a spade and a club, the declarer the five of hearts and jack of hearts, East discarding two clubs.

The declarer has two finesses which he can take—the heart or the club. But as West is marked with the king of clubs the club finesse is the one that should be taken rather than the heart, which may lose. West plays the

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES.

Keen judges who have seen "Mischiefs" regard it as the funniest British comedy yet made. It is a riot of laughter from the opening to the final fade-out. It is a British and Dominion production featuring Ralph Lynn, who has established himself as Britain's leading screen comedian. The story by Ben Travers is in the style of "Rookery No. 1", "Plunder" and other famous Aldwych stage successes, and maintains the audience in a shimmer of merriment throughout its length. Ralph Lynn is provided with one of his characteristic parts in the development of which he is seen at his very best. The film uproariously describes a matrimonial affair into which Lynn obtrudes with his customary eagerness and excellent intentions. Naturally, he complicates the issue, but in good time runs against Winifred Shotter and escapes all about his misadventure, falling in love with the charming girl. It all ends happily, the end of the film being more than ludicrously ridiculous in the Ralph Lynn sense.

"Rockabye"

"Rockabye" brings Constance Bennett to the Central Theatre to-day in a daring, sophisticated revel of heart abandon. The extreme range or human emotions is played by the star in a dazzling, racing tumult of contrasting situations. The characterization by Miss Bennett shows her rockeet between two loves—a mute adorer and of an aggressive suitor—a dilemma made more pointed by a mother instinct that reveals itself in a worship of children. This worship, replete with sympathy and appeal, builds into a climax of great dramatic sacrifice.

"Rockabye" provides two leading men for Miss Bennett. Joel McCrea in the role of the playwright and Paul Lukas as her manager, both devoted lovers. Others in the cast are Clare Blandick, Hazel Jones and J. M. Kerrigan.

Isla Bevan

Isla Bevan, one of the most beautiful girls in the English film studios, features in "Puppets of Fate" at the Queen's Theatre from to-morrow.

Miss Bevan started her stage career as one of the famous Cochrans "Young Ladies" in the revue "This Year of Grace". She went with this revue to New York, where she played small parts and was then engaged for the American production of "Bitter Sweet." On her return to England she appeared in a film "The Star Reporter" and as a result of her work in this picture was awarded a contract for films by Mr. Basil Dean, for whom she appeared in "Nine Till Six," "The Sign of Four," etc.

Isla then went back to the stage and played a leading part in Priestley's play "Dangerous Corner," and nine, declarer finesses the queen and East plays the three of hearts. The declarer then cashes his ace of clubs, king of spades and the ace of hearts, losing the last trick to the king of hearts.

By being persistent in establishment of his diamond suit, the declarer has made four no trump.

since then has appeared in several films at Twickenham, including "The Face at the Window" and "The World, the Flesh and the Devil." Isla Bevan is a platinum blonde, with blue eyes, and is just twenty-two years old.

"Mr. Robinson Crusoe"

When Douglas Fairbanks cast about for an idea for his current production, "Mr. Robinson Crusoe", coming to the King's Theatre on Friday, he demanded one thing. It must be a joyful subject that would prove not only entertainment in these days of long shadows, but carry an optimistic and hopeful note.

It is a tale of a modern Robinson Crusoe, who finds himself upon an uninhabited island. Instead of being depressed and giving up, he pitches in and makes the best of things through sheer grit and perseverance.

In the cast are William Farnum, long a star in his own right, Miss Maria Alba, Earle Browne and others. Edward Sutherland directed, and Tom J. Geraghty worked with the star on the story and dialogue. "It is a joyful story of the South Sea," said Doug, "made in an earthy paradise and song—a romantic fantasy of to-day. Heretofore most pictures of life in the islands have depicted the drab and the sordid, the staggering bench-combers, the wasters and ne-do-wells—unpleasant people in unpleasant surroundings and situations."

"The theme of the tale is keyed in the purposeful character of a modern Robinson Crusoe who tackles and meets every emergency with this thought: 'There's a way out.' In this is reflected a spirit of hope and optimism, a concrete truth that 'happiness is just around the corner'."

GERMAN PROTEST

RESULTS IN QUESTIONS
IN COMMONS

London, May 2.
The German protest to the Foreign Office regarding the debate in the House of Commons on April 13 when the Hitler regime met with bitter criticism, had a sequel in the House at question time to-day.

Mr. Baldwin, answering Foreign questions in place of Sir John Simon, Foreign Secretary, who is indisposed, stated that the German Charge d'Affaires had expressed concern at Sir John Simon's speech, especially because he had associated himself with the other speakers instead of repudiating them. No comment was made on the statement of the Charge d'Affaires at the time, and Sir John Simon did not consider that it called for action on his part.

Mr. Cocks (Labour) asked why Sir John Simon did not refuse to accept the communication and tell the German Government that it could not treat the House of Commons like the Reichstag.

Mr. Baldwin—"Because I think it possible sometimes to exaggerate the importance of these matters."
—Reuter's Special.

Sharp Criticism.

The sharply critical references in the Commons to the Hitler regime and its activities annoyed official circles in Berlin and a protest was lodged.

Particular objection was taken to the declaration by Sir Austen Chamberlain, who said: This is no time to talk of concessions to a country where it is a crime to favour peace or to be a Jew.

Mr. Winston Churchill also shocked the Hitlerites by saying

HITLER'S COUP

"BROWN SHIRTS" RAID ON TRADE UNIONS

Berlin, May 2.
The "Brown Shirts" simultaneously occupied all the "Free Trade Unions" which are members of the Universal Germany Trade Union League throughout Germany to-day. This move inaugurates Hitler's campaign to break the hold of social democracy on the Employed Workers Commissioner, Herr Engel, who occupies the Berlin headquarters of the metal workers union, the biggest German trade union.

It is said that the "Politik of Hitler" will no longer be tolerated, and that Communist journals will henceforth have to submit to Government control, while the distribution of provocative leaflets will not be allowed.

Hitler's coup affects Socialist trade unions with a membership of five millions. It was carried out at 10 a.m. throughout the country by Police aided by "Brown Shirts" who occupied all the trade union buildings, workmen's banks and consumers' co-operative stores, and arrested 50 prominent leaders, including Leipert, Secretary of the Trade Union Federation, Wissel, ex-Minister of Labour, and three editors.

All Socialist trade unions will shortly be re-organized in the form of a consort with the Nazi movement.—Reuter.

that if Germany were given full military equality a general European war would be in sight.

German official circles were displeased because Sir John Simon did not rebuke these speakers.

SOVIET AMBASSADOR.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY AT NANKING

Nanking, May 2.
A ceremony such as has seldom been witnessed in Nanking marked the presentation at noon of the credentials of the new Soviet Ambassador, M. Bogomolov who drove to the Government office in a special state carriage, accompanied by members of his staff.

Emphasizing that the Soviet's policy to China had always been based on the principle of equality through respect of rights and the interests of the Chinese people, M. Bogomolov said the Soviet would strive to make a resumption and development of normal relations with China as a means of strengthening the peace of the Far East and the whole world.

Replying M. Lin Sen, Chairman of the National Government said China would spare no effort to contribute towards their common goal of strengthening world peace.—Reuter.

Government to Buy Sailor's Home

$185,000 FOR NEW OFFICES

The Government proposes to acquire the site of the old Sailors' Home and Seamen's Institute for conversion into offices at a cost of $180,000.

The necessary alteration will cost an additional $12,000.

The site will be used for providing more Government Offices, which, with the condemnation of Beaconsfield Arcade, have become necessary.

Beaconsfield Arcade has housed the Port Development Sub-Department, Sanitary Department District Office, the Statistical Office and the Medical Department Store, and it is proposed that the old Sailors' Home shall be acquired for the use of some of these departmental offices.

ARGENTINE AND U.S. JOINT STATEMENT ISSUED

Washington, May 2.

A joint statement issued by President Roosevelt and the Argentine delegate of the Argentine Government, announced that the talks between Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Lebrun dealt with financial, economic and monetary problems in connection with the World Economic Conference.

It is reported that the Argentine delegation informed President Roosevelt that Argentina was willing to make the same exchange arrangements with the United States as she has just made with Great Britain.—Reuter.

ARCHAEOLOGICAL DISCOVERIES

$1,000 GRANT FOR EXCAVATIONS

Archaeological excavations at one of the Colony's beaches in search of pottery which, it is believed will have important bearing on the prehistory of the Far East, are to be carried out by the Government.

A vote of $1,000 to cover the cost of the work will come before the Finance Committee.

The excavations will be carried out under the direction of Father Finn. Already certain articles of pottery have been discovered to which considerable importance is attached.

WEAKER SILVER TENDENCY

LITTLE SUPPORT IN MARKET

The silver market was weak both in London and New York yesterday. London prices were 1/4d. down for spot silver and 5/16ths down for forward. America was a small seller, but there was no support for the market. After the official fixing, a weaker tendency developed and business is reported to have been done at under 20d.

In New York, the decline was from 36 1/4 to 35 1/4, the market being irregular.

The dollar dropped an eight to 15.44d.

Hand injuries were sustained by a Chinese boy, who fell down at Aberdeen yesterday. He was sent to hospital.

RATIOS INVIDIOUS AN IMPLICATION OF INFERIORITY

Tokyo, May 3.

A Government spokesman indicated to-day that in the future, at the Disarmament Conference and elsewhere, Japan is likely to press for equality in armaments as a matter of principle.

It is contended by the Japanese Government that the present system of naval ratios, 10-10-7 at the moment, is invidious owing to the implication of inferiority contained therein.—Reuter.

INVASION OF CHAHAR JAPANESE AGAIN ADVANCING

Peking, May 3.

Japanese and Manchukuo troops are again invading Chahar Province and the situation is reported to be critical.

The invading force is advancing on Taliangtikow, between Dolon and Kuyun, according to Chinese reports.

Chinese cavalry are reported to be erecting defences. It seems likely that the Japanese are planning to press on to Kalgan from two routes and the atmosphere in Kalgan is tense.—Reuter.

Shansi regiments under General Fu Tso-yi are reported to have arrived near Dolon and will join the troops under Chao Sheng-shao.

Chinese official circles believe that the extensive Japanese troop movements in the Kupeikow sector indicate an intention to withdraw. The Japanese appear to be planning to change to a defensive position at Kupeikow.

General Oong Chao-yuan's troops are making good progress in the direction of Lulung and Funging and, it is claimed, have rounded up over 1,000 Manchukuo soldiers. Chinese troops are busily engaged in rehabilitation work at Paitaiho.

MOSLEM LEADERS IMPRISONED

Istanbul, May 3.

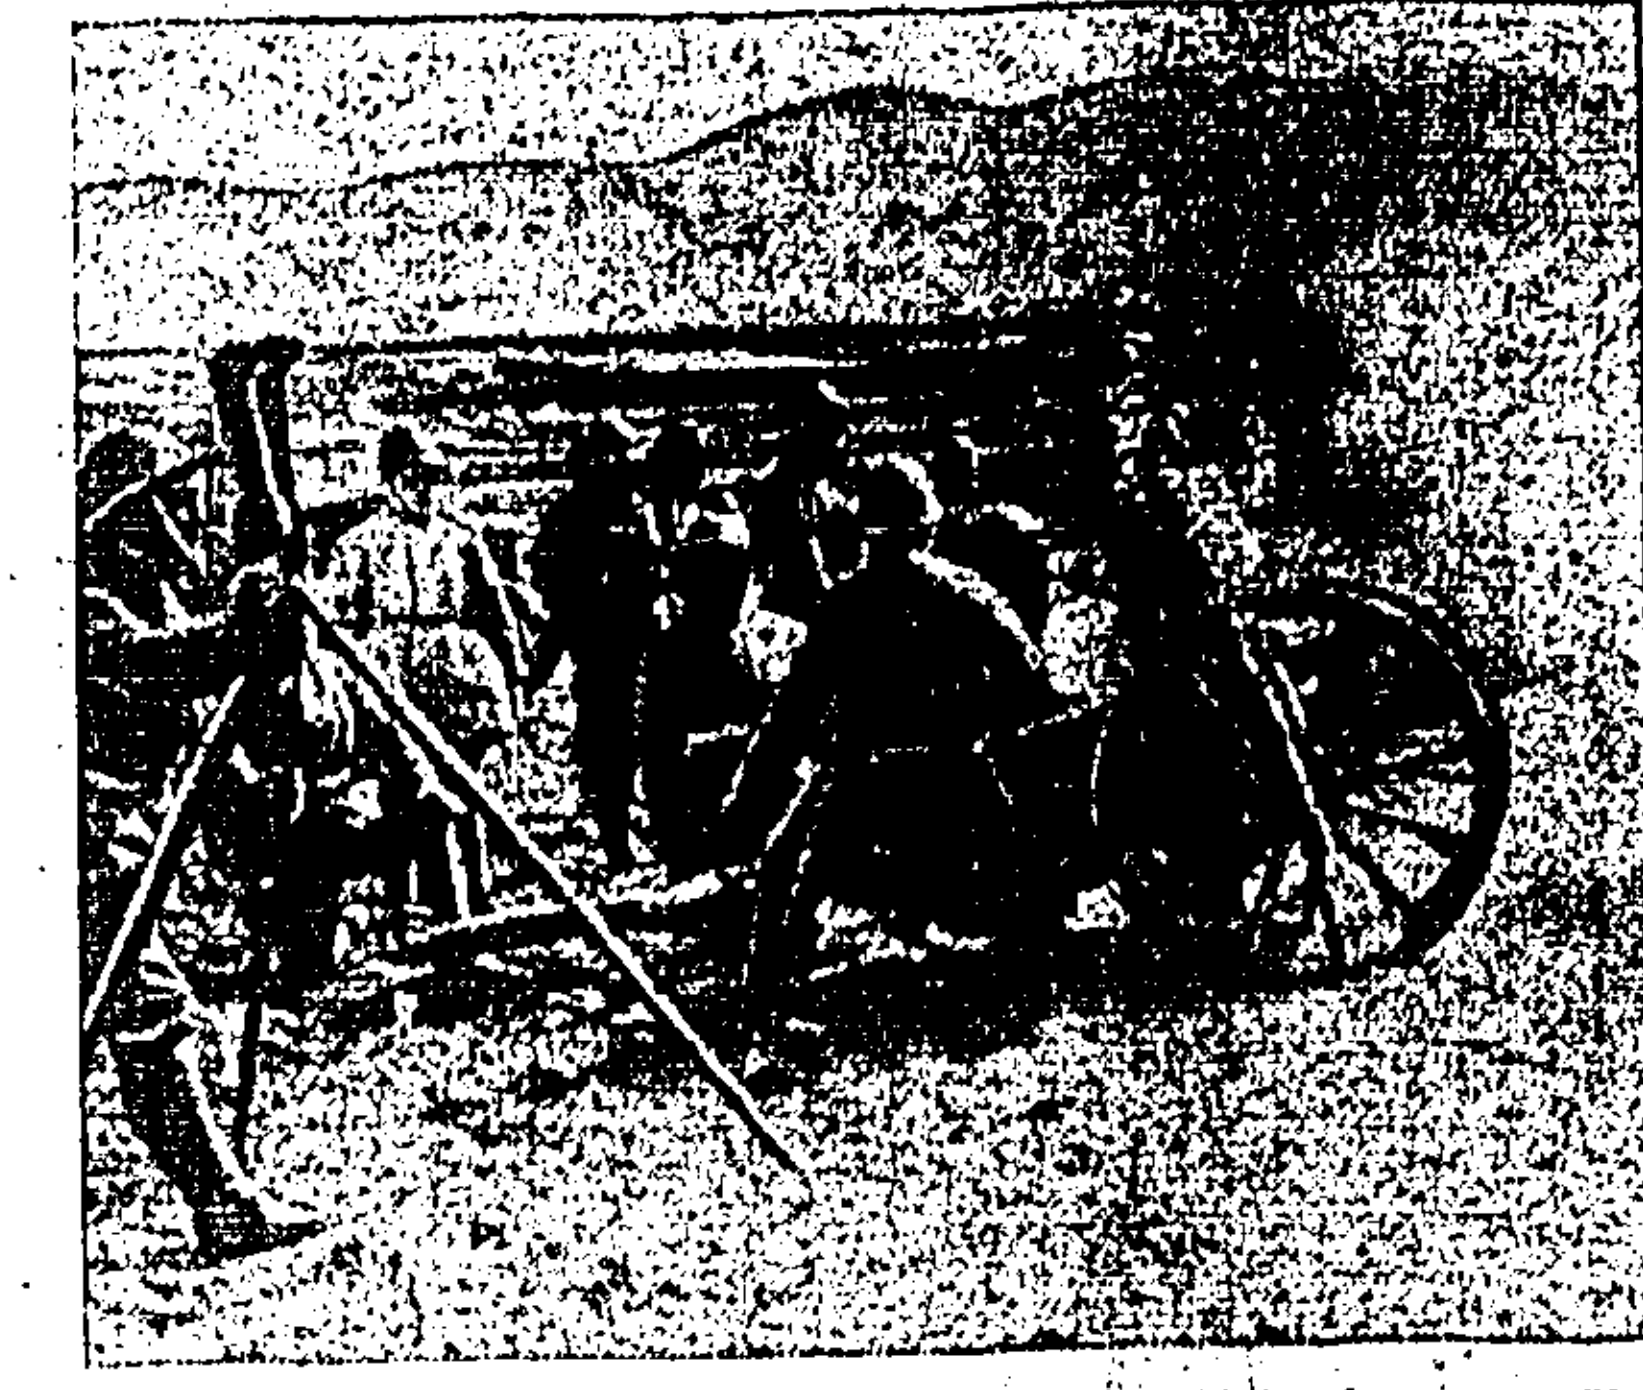

Seven dignitaries of the Moslem religion have been sentenced to terms of imprisonment ranging from two years to six months for participation in the Brussa religious disturbances of February last year.

It will be recalled that serious riots occurred when Moslem dignitaries objected to the reading of the Koran in Turkish instead of Arabic in accordance with the decision of Mustafa Kemal.

The sentences are considerably lighter than expected.—Reuter.

DIRECTORS' FEES QUESTIONED CONSTRUCTION COY. MEETING

A mild breeze relating to the payment of Directors' fees arose at the annual meeting of the Hongkong Engineering and Construction Co. Ltd., to-day, when Mr. J. Gould protested against the fees amounting to three per cent. of the Capital of the Company at a time when no dividend could be paid.

Mr. J. Scott Harston, supporting the Chairman in replying to the criticism, said that he did not think Directors were overpaid for the amount of work they did. Personally, he was prepared to give his seat on the Board up if Shareholders did not like the present arrangement.

Addressing the meeting, the Chairman of Directors, the Hon. Mr. J. P. Braga, said:

After allowing for Managing Director's salary, Directors' and Auditors' fees, and taking into account Bank and other interest earned and Transfer Fees received, the profit for the year amounts to $3,256.03. This amount together with the carry-over from 1931 makes a total of $89,955.11, which your Directors recommend be carried forward to a new account.

SMALL PROFITS.

You may feel disappointed at the smallness of the profit for the past year. The explanation for it is that, as compared with the preceding year, there has been a falling off in the gross value of contracts secured of $205,122, the comparative figures being, for 1932, $131,012, and 1931, $338,134. Not only has there been substantial shrinkage in the aggregate contract value, but competition has been fiercer with greater severity than during 1931. This is a feature of your Company's trading operations which was commented upon when I addressed you last year. I then indicated the probability of less work in sight. Until owners realize that re-inforced concrete piles are cheaper than wood piles in the end, this branch of the Company's business will have to face sustained competition.

THE BALANCE SHEET.

Comments on the Balance Sheet may be confined to just a few remarks only, since the statement sets out in detail each item on both the Liability and Asset sides of the Accounts. The amount of $36,768.85 standing against Sundry Debtors has all been collected since the accounts were drawn up. The depreciation in the value of the Company's investments in the Sinking Fund of the accounts which has been added to with some regret. The market value of the securities has been further reduced since 31st December last. This depreciation

OPEN DOOR POLICY STATEMENT BY MANCHUKUO CLOSURE THREAT DENIED

Changchun, May 2.

A semi-official statement has been issued by Manchukuo Government leaders denying any intention of abandoning the Open Door policy.

The statement says that Manchukuo is not contemplating any deviation from her Declaration of Independence, in which the maintenance of the Open Door and equal opportunity was emphasised.

The publication of the statement follows closely upon a report of remarks by a Japanese Member of the Manchukuo Privy Council, who is alleged to have said, in effect, that Manchukuo may consider closing the door against foreign powers who do not recognise her.—Reuter.

FAIR WEATHER

The Royal Observatory reports that a moderate anticyclone has developed over the Yangtze Valley; the depression is situated in the northern part of the Sea of Japan.

Local forecast:—N.E. winds, moderate; fair.

DEVELOPMENT WORKS.

You will expect me to say a few words on the development of K.L.L. 2557. As will be seen from the Balance Sheet, the sum spent under this big scheme up to 31st December last was $288,351.58 after deducting instalments amounting to $12,518.10 received in respect of two plots of land sold within the area. No account has been taken of any profits that may accrue from the sale of these plots, as we are advised by the Company's Auditors that we should not count on profits until the whole scheme is completed.

The liability side of the Balance Sheet, which is the subject of my special comment, except the addition of $3,000 to the General Reserve arising out of the

KOWLOON BUSES NEW COMPANY FORMED FOR MONOPOLY EXPANSION PLAN

A new company, the Kowloon Motor Bus Company (1933), Limited, has been formed to operate Kowloon's bus services under the franchise granted by the Government, which is due to take effect on June 11.

The authorised capital is $3,500,000 of which between one and two millions will be issued. The capital of the original company was $250,000.

The company is hopeful of an early satisfactory settlement of the negotiations now proceeding for the taking over of the buses and equipment of the two other companies now operating on the mainland.

110 BUSES.

Mr. Lam Ming-fan, the Secretary of the Company, in an interview with a Telegraph representative this morning, expressed his belief that the Company would probably be in full control before the date fixed.

At present, the Company owns fifty buses. The other companies own about 60, for which the price asked is round about $400,000, on a sterling basis.

EXPANSION PLANS.

Big plans for expansion are in contemplation. There are at present eleven routes on the mainland. The new company hopes to increase this number to eighteen, including the provision of services opening up the New Territories to a greater extent.

The present motor-vehicles will probably be in use for about two years, but the Company plans to convert their vehicles gradually to Diesel-engined buses.

ANTI-JAPANESE ORATOR FINE IMPOSED ON DEALER

A Chinese medicine dealer who indulged in street oratory in Hollywood Road and collected a crowd of about 50 listeners, was fined $20 or three weeks by Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning.

Detective-Inspector Carey said the defendant spoke about the Manchuria fighting, and was heard by the detective to say "We Chinese should boycott competitors."

The Inspector pointed out that if it were not for the fact that the emergency regulations had been repealed the defendant would have faced a more serious charge.

LONG CRUISE IN ANTARCTIC

London, May 3.

A tragic ending of the epic Antarctic cruise of the research ship, Discovery II, occurred yesterday morning, when the vessel was almost within sight of home.

The Colonial Office has received a report from the Discovery II announcing that Commander W. M. Carey, the commander of the Royal Research Ship, has been lost overboard in a storm off Ushant.

The Discovery II is due to arrive in London to-day, returning from a nineteen months' cruise of the Antarctic regions, engaged in marine research work.

HISTORIC TRIP.

The voyage carried her to the extreme south, and in the course of her travels, the vessel completely circumnavigated the Antarctic Continent during a southern winter for the first time in history. Once she was practically ice-bound, but she found her way through the drifts.

The Discovery II's researches were mainly directed towards saving the Antarctic whaling industry, which has been suffering greatly from too great a destruction of whales during recent boom years.

Valuable data is aboard the vessel and it is tragic that Commander Carey should have emerged successfully through the perils of the Antarctic seas to lose his life in the English Channel.—Reuter.

MR. MATSUOKA'S EXPLANATION

Tokyo, May 2.

Confessing that he has returned to Japan with his mission unfulfilled, Mr. Matsuoka, who argued Japan's case before the League Council and League Assembly, delivered a broadcast address on the events at Geneva.

He is of opinion that the time has come for Japan to discard the diplomacy she has traditionally pursued for the past sixty odd years, in favour of an initiative national diplomacy based on the true spirit of Japan. "If we should be no tactical bargaining in diplomacy," he said, "we must act with strict veracity. He conscientiously avoided diplomatic bargaining, but Mr. Matsuoka spoke and acted honestly. To do anything to curry favour with the Western Powers would be to take a leaf out of the diplomatic book of China. Japan ought to have her own way of doing things. She must act sincerely and honestly with a view of vindicating the spirit of Japan in the world."

He said that the Powers were not necessarily ill-disposed towards Japan, but British, fearing the threatened anti-British boycott in Central and South China, suddenly changed her attitude at Geneva.

This, he declared, was the major factor in forcing Japan to withdraw from the League.

COLLEGE STUDENTS IN COURT

Stone Throwing as a Sport

Six students of St. Joseph's College, Shek Kee-hung, 16, Kan Yat-sun, 17, Chan Ting-ki, 15, Chan Chee-sun, 16, Yip Shuen-kee, 16, and Harry Bone, 14, appeared before Mr. Schofield in the Central Police Court this morning, to answer a charge of throwing stones, in Kennedy Road near Monmouth Path.

Defendants, according to Detective-Sub-Inspector Nolloth, were standing in the middle of the road throwing stones at a lamp standard. A pane of glass was cracked. There was no direct evidence against the first defendant and Bone, who were accordingly discharged.

A fine of $10 was imposed on the other defendants, his Worship remarking:—"I am afraid you will have to abandon stone throwing as a sport in the future."

GLORIFYING YOURSELF.

By Alicia Hart.

When you walk down the street don't do it merely for the purpose of locomotion. Not merely because a straight line is the shortest distance between two places and you intend to get there in a hurry—gracefully or gracelessly!

Make walking an art. And enjoy it. If your lungs are crowded the clean, free air . . . or even the sooty, murky air, which after all is better than no air . . . won't get into your system. Your eyes will look downward instead of up and your lips will droop since your whole body is reflecting a downward curve.

So first of all, look up. Make your body into a straight line, and keep it that way. For a practice stunt, stand against a wall, making sure that the small of your back touches the wall. Now put your weight forward on the balls of your feet. And walk! Some inner urge will make your steps light and free. But when you throw your weight backward you add years to your posture, and years are a drag in walking.

Imagine that an invisible string has been tied to the top of your head, while you are standing in that slim, upright position. Pretend that it is there so industriously that you feel it pulling your hair until the scalp tingles. Now, with the string doing its uplifting stunt, start to walk. Your shoulders can't sag.

Don't merely throw back your shoulders in a military gesture. You will be stiff if you do. You will defeat your own ends. You want grace, you know. And freedom. And they come in an easy, non-chalant posture that knows its way home or down any street.

Try not to have any parcels to carry when you are taking long walks. Let your arms hang. There is a certain relaxation that comes from this position which aids the circulation and does improving things to eyes and cheeks and lips.

Walk as though you are somebody important, not as though you are just a drab individuality in a crowd.

Showing Off the Shy Child

Are you shy? Are you sensitive? Do you shrink from strangers? Do you have to force yourself to go out and meet other people beside your most intimate friends?

If you are any or all of these things you know what real misery means, because you not only are unhappy at the time, but live in almost constant dread of having to force yourself to do things. Such forcing makes you nervous, takes it out of you so to speak, and leaves you exhausted. Not only that, but lest people discover this quality in you, you overact, over-talk, overdo everything. It is almost as though you were trying desperately to touch something in them that would react favourably to yourself.

Shy people, for this reason, are likely to be soft, to be ingratiating, and even to be too sympathetic at times.

"Selfish Generosity"

Some of the most sympathetic people in the world, the most generous, the most altruistic, are often so from selfish urges. Unconsciously selfish, or egocentric at least, from deep underlying defences sent out by the mind.

Let us now turn our attention to the children. Why are so many children shy? If you are shy now, you were so as a child. What caused it?

To tell the truth, many babies develop this contra-social feeling in their cradles when they are so new and so tiny it would seem impossible for them to have any sensations at all except pain or hunger. The child establishes his general attitude to the world very early.

I believe most shyness is developed too early to do much about it, but on the other hand a great deal of it is a direct result of treatment. The baby that is surrounded by too many people, or that it laughed at, will suddenly withdraw into himself and set up a defence wall. He will cry if strangers come in, or pick him up. Sometimes he will cry if any of the family pick him up except his mother or nurse.

As these little people begin to develop, to play, run about, become real members of the family, their troubles begin in earnest. They are at the cute age when they are exploited like prize puppies—always on exhibition. Their antics are broadcast to the neighbours, their unconscious little gestures developing naturally day by day delight the family, and they cannot perform the simplest action without having it passed around and publicized.

Don't Show Off the Child

Don't do it. If the baby has a tendency to shrink away from the world, it is only putting a sharper edge on the pattern.

Never mention his shyness to him or anyone. Never force him to meet strangers by making him the centre of attention. Yes, they may be about, but let him learn to lose his fear of them, to accept them as he would the furniture. Never laugh at him, or fuss over him, or call attention to what he does. And never, never make him show off, no matter what age he is. It is too cruel.

Shyness can be in a great measure overcome, actually, I mean, not merely by posing if wisdom and act are put to work by the family. It will save years of suffering and may mean health instead of breakdown later on.

"It is with the greatest pleasure that I write to testify to the benefits I have received by taking Phosferine during my training for the 1931 Malayan Weight-Lifting Championships.
As I had to reduce some seven or eight pounds off my normal bodyweight in order to enable me to compete in the 9-stone class, I had to go into very strenuous training, and with the help of Phosferine, I not only won the championship of that class, but also the Individual Championship, and, in addition I broke a British Record.
I therefore have no hesitation in recommending Phosferine to any physical culturist or athlete, whether he be in ordinary training or preparing for a competition, as it

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

MONA MORAN, receptionist in a Wall Street law office, is in love with HARRY TOWNSEND, rich and socially prominent. The met Harry through STEVE, JACKA-RELLI, her childhood sweetheart, who has returned to New York after three years' absence. Steve has been in South America where, largely by chance, he has become associated with Harry, owner of a diamond mine long believed worthless. Together they have made the mine pay and are now business partners. Steve owns a huge diamond called "The Empress of Peru." LOTTIE, CARB, fashion model, joins Mona, Harry and Steve on several dinner and dancing engagements. Mona's brother, RUD, becomes involved with gamblers who plan to steal the big diamond. Steve suspects this, traps Rud and when he confesses helps him escape to South America where he is to have a job at the mine. Some time later Harry invites Mona, Lottie and Steve to spend Sunday at his uncle's palatial country home. They make the trip in Steve's motor. Harry is a delightful host. However, when he and Mona are together he fails to propose.

CHAPTER XIX

Mr. Faxon joined the young people at luncheon. Elizabeth, Barry's sister, had telephoned, she said. Elizabeth, marrying early, was the mother of four frolicsome children and kept in daily touch with the Townsend ménage yet Mrs. Faxon mentioned her call as if it were an occasion.

"Want anything?" Barry inquired.

"That reminds me!" Barry exclaimed. "I thought it might be a good stunt to have dinner at the camp. There are steaks around somewhere, aren't there? Jean could make—"

"Splendid!" Mrs. Faxon said delightedly and took the reins of preparation out of Barry's hands. "I'll send Jimmy down to get the place warm and dusted."

Turning to Mona she went on, "You should feel duly flattered. Barry shows the camp only to his closest friends. I've known of people to hint for weeks—"

"It's my private thinking place," Barry admitted.

After luncheon the four piled into Barry's roadster and made a tour of the countryside. They stopped for tea at a small inn and when they returned to the motor car Barry drove with Mona beside him. Steve and Lottie, in the rumble seat, were apparently deep in some gay secret. Steve's chuckles, punctuated by Lottie's high-pitched chatter, reached Mona in the front seat.

The car ran smoothly along the highway, dipping with the hills, rising again amid rows of oaks and maples. It glided past the carefully checkered meadows that made up the well-groomed estates of the rich.

Here all was luxury—no huddled towns of tiny houses, no glaring billboards, no small shops.

As the road twisted and turned the sinking sun reddened, danced ahead of them, danced to the left, then the right again and finally disappeared, as if to terminate the pleasant game of hide and seek they had been playing. Almost immediately they were back at Twilands, returning by a new road. Dusk was settling in the trees.

The girls ran upstairs, laughing and chatting.

"Hey you!" Barry called.

"That's for me," explained Lottie. "Didn't I tell you he always calls me that?" She turned and said, "What?"

"Hey you! Dinner is broiling. Come on!"

Mrs. Faxon had gone ahead with Jimmy and Jean and the huge basket of supplies. Mona and Lottie, Steve and Barry, set out to follow over the gently freezing road, then struck out crosslots for the camp.

On the verandah the appetizing odour of broiling steak greeted them. Jimmy, kneeling before the flame, was guarding the piece de resistance tenderly but relinquished his place immediately to Barry. Jean, smiling from the kitchen door, was mixing salad dressing. The camp now was warm, cosy and delightful.

Mrs. Faxon, busying herself at the table, called them at last to sit.

When they had finished eating they turned on the radio and danced. Mona, puzzled at first, decided that Barry was avoiding her. When he addressed her he seemed to keep the conversation on a general note. The servants departed carrying the emptied hamper and Mrs. Faxon, from her cretonne fire-seat, beamed on the little party approvingly.

"She likes us," Mona thought. And she was right. Mrs. Faxon thought Mona exquisite and her friend, Lottie, refreshing and amusing.

"Barry should have more good times like this," Mrs. Faxon was telling herself. Loyal to each, the dissension between Barry and his uncle worried her. She did her best to help each of them arrive at a more complete understanding.

At last all of them left the little camp wrapped in darkness and silence. Mona thought, as she took Steve's arm, that the whole day had been over too soon. Lottie walked with Barry and he told her of the southern cross, of the tropics, and the lunar rainbow he had seen once in Port-of-Spain.

"Everyone was excited about the lunar rainbow," I remember. Steve and I had gone to bed. The night was lighted by the whitest moonlight I had ever seen and after a while it began raining. I awoke, heard a noise in the hotel court, got out of bed and saw two natives knifing each other down below. Beyond, above the houses across the street, was the rainbow—a faint arc of colour. When I mentioned it next morning everybody was much more excited about that than they had been about the murder. Killings were frequent enough but lunar rainbows were rare!"

As Mona drew on her hat before the mirror she thought with a pang that in a scant quarter of an hour she would leave this delightful place. How easy her entrance had been and how simple her departure! Another 15 minutes and then an exit through the door. She might never enter Barry's life again!

"Miss Dower calling," he said. Presently Barry reappeared and caught Mona's hand in his own. There was no one else in the hall and he drew her into the drawing room.

"Does it make any difference to you that Steve is my friend?" he asked. "I mean, do you like me any better because of that?" His eyes, looking into hers, were troubled. "You didn't like me at first at the office, did you?" Barry went on.

Mona drew her hand away gently. "Of course I like you," she said promptly though a trifle shakily.

She had wanted to see Barry alone. The moment was here now and she hardly knew how to meet it.

"I want to ask you something, Mona," Barry went on. "I've asked Steve. I've asked your loquacious little friend, too, and now I'm going to ask you. They've both encouraged me a little in the hope—"

"Hope?" the girl's face was scarlet.

"The hope that I'm not intruding. That the situation between you and old Steve isn't serious. If I hang around a bit—dine with you—take you out once in a while—am I butting in? Hang, it—are you in love with Steve?"

Mona raised her eyes and looked at him squarely.

"Steve has never asked me that, Barry," she said.

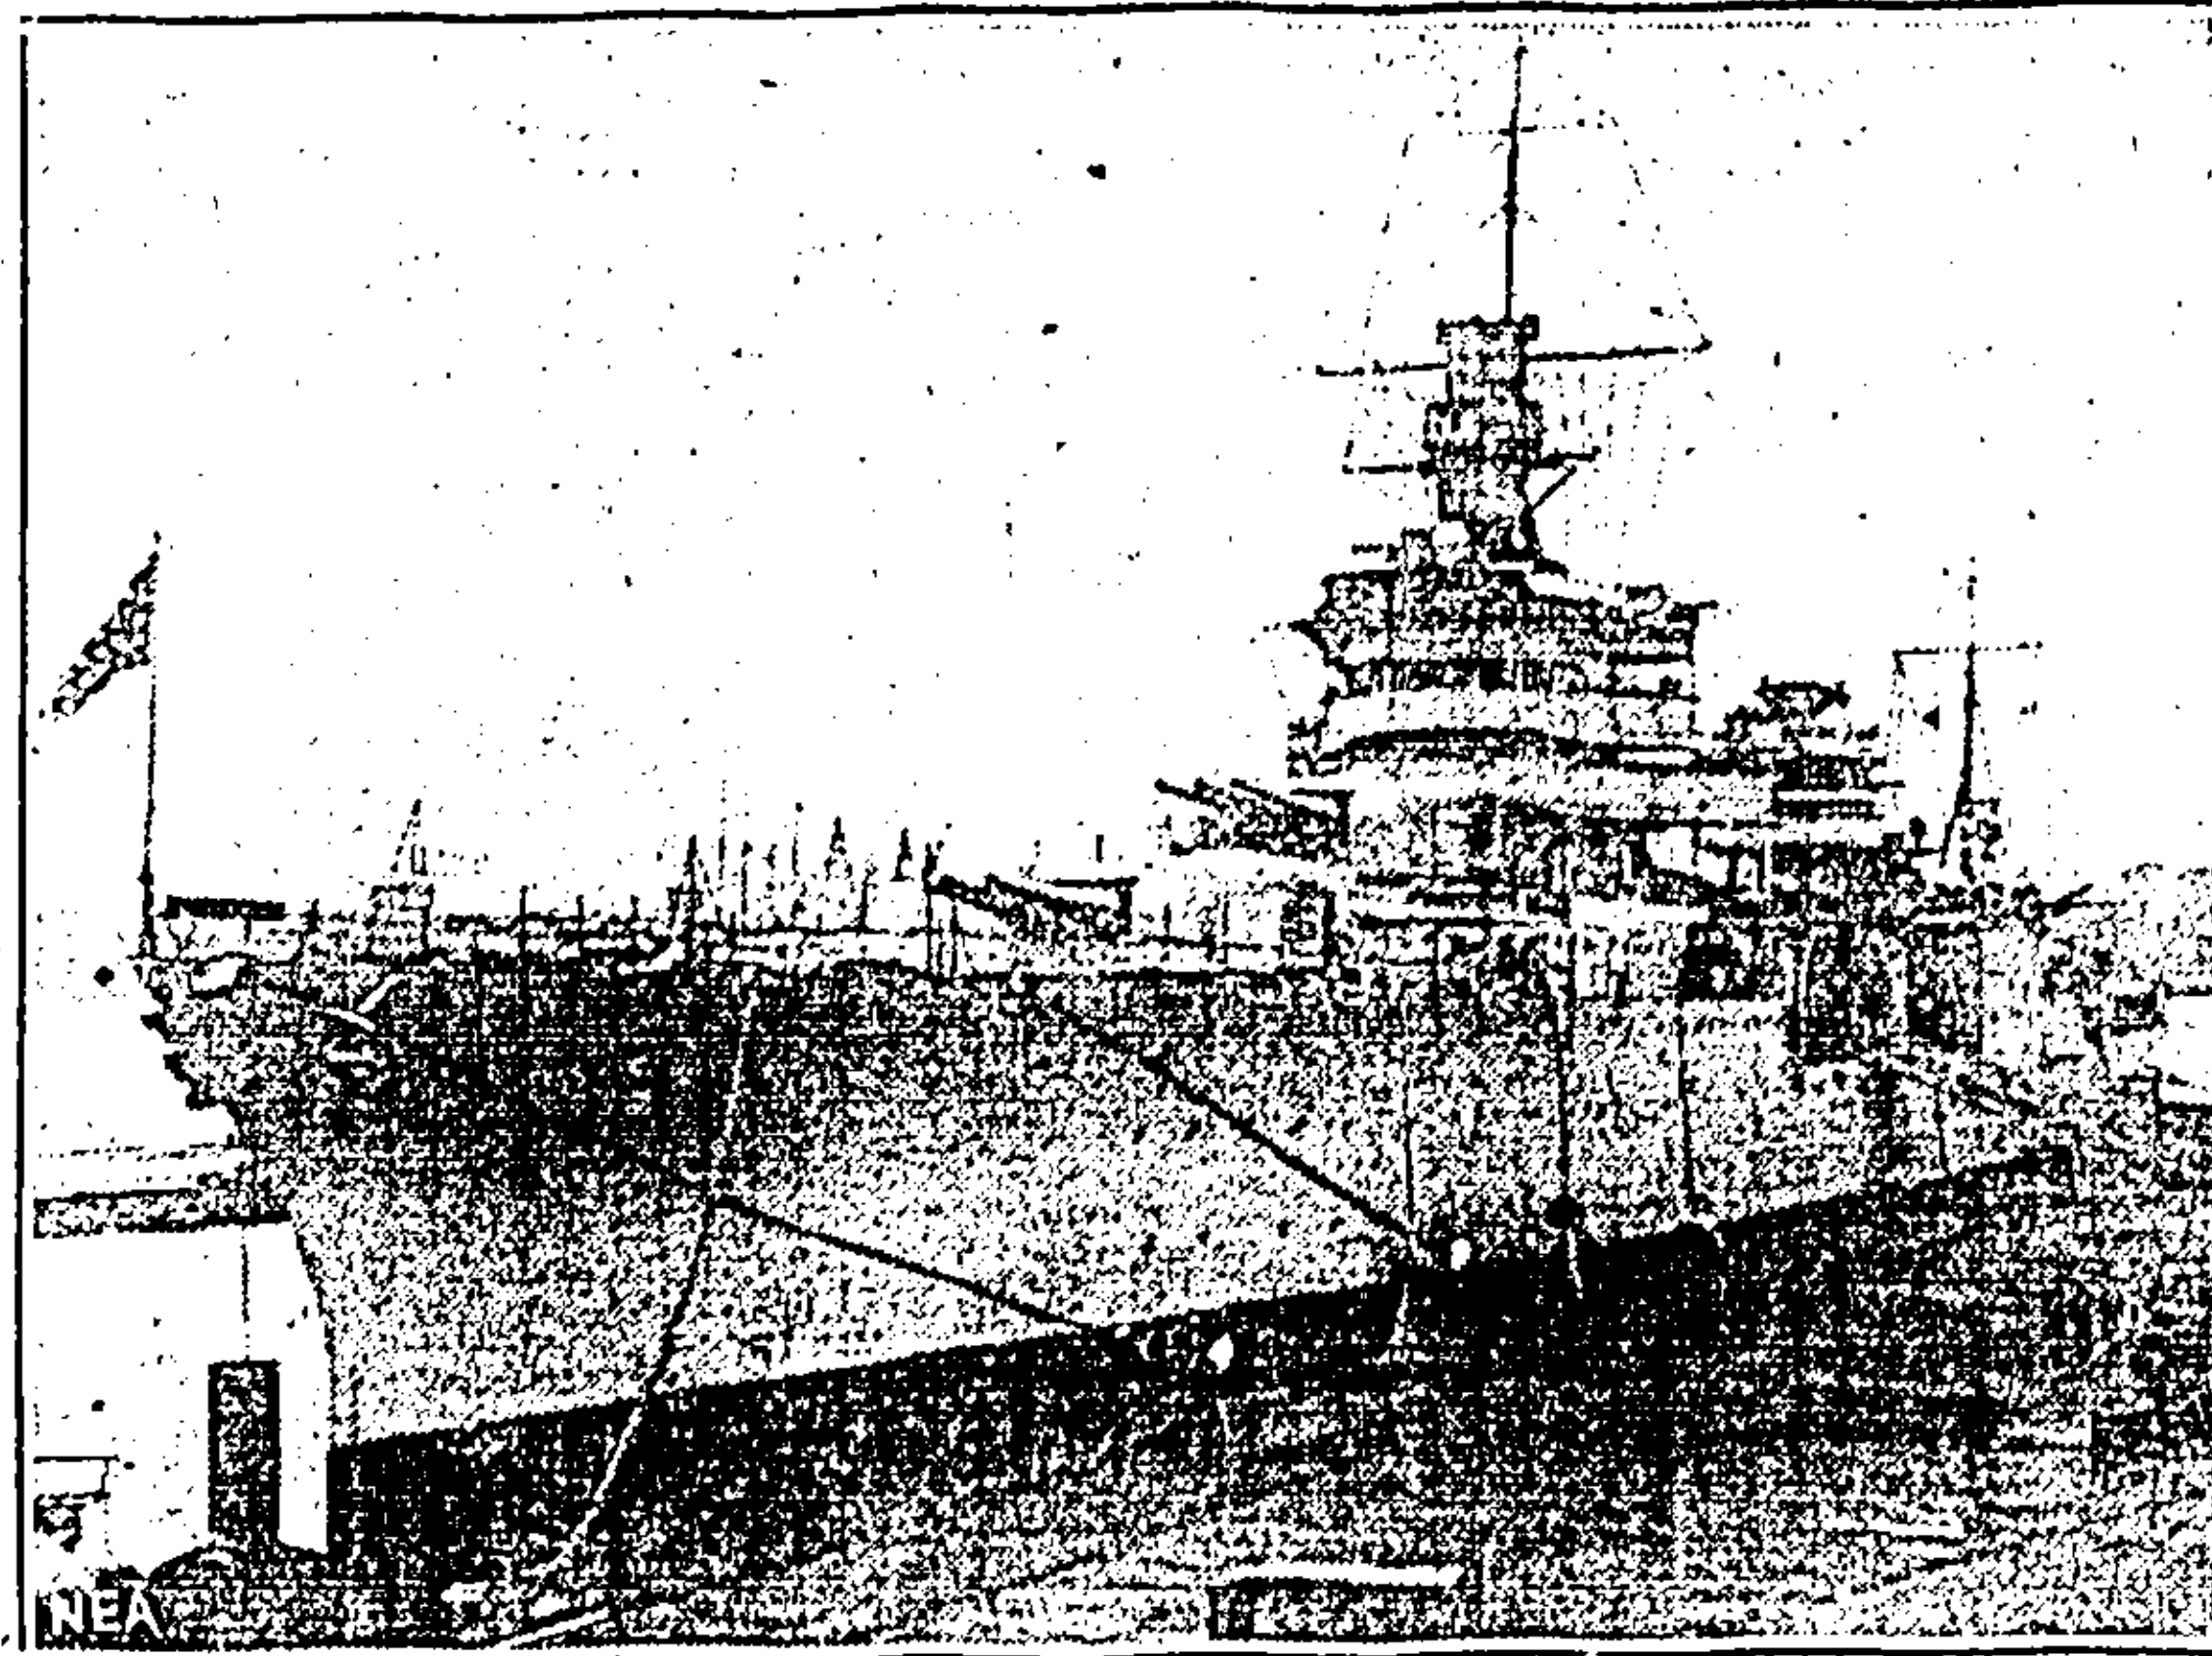

"You see," he went on earnestly, "if Steve were engaged to a girl and I wanted to take her out to dinner he would cheerfully postpone the wedding ceremony and persuade her to go with me! That's Steve!"

"He thinks a great deal of you, I know."

"And he thinks a great deal of you, Mona, too!" Once more Barry grasped her hand eagerly.

DIRECTORS' FEES QUESTIONED

proceeds of sale during the past year of obsolete plant written off.

SHAREHOLDERS' LETTER.

Reference may be permitted at this stage to a joint letter which was addressed by 18 shareholders and received by the Directors on the 19th April last. The signatories represent a registered holding of shares to the extent of 8,560 "Old" shares and 40,260
"New" shares. In other words, a proportion of 8.56% and 10.39% of the issued Capital, respectively. In the letter the desirability of paying a dividend out of the profits carried over from 1931 was represented to the Directors. Under ordinary circumstances the Board might have seen fit to fall in with the suggestion for the payment of a Dividend. It was with regret, however, that the Directors replied to the shareholders that they saw no reason for reversing the decision taken at the Board meeting when the final Accounts for 1932 were considered, not to declare a dividend in respect of the year 1932. It was after considerable deliberation and much thought that your Directors reached the conclusion that it would be inadvisable to recommend a dividend. We hope that for the reasons and in the circumstances that I am about to state you will agree that the decision is a correct one especially since we should otherwise be placed under the necessity of making an early Call on the New Issues shares. We are, as you all aware, definitely committed to the expenditure of $600,000 in the Company's undertaking to comply with the Government requirements in relation to K.I.L. 2567. Levelling and site formation—the first stage of the scheme—is progressing satisfactorily.
Both in point of time and cost the Engineers estimate has not been exceeded. It should not be difficult for you to realise that the Company must be in a position to control sufficient resources in order to carry out the scheme to a successful conclusion.

LAND SCHEME.

Besides the development of the large area of over 30 acres comprised within K.I.L. 2567, the Company has to incur shortly a further expenditure in the renewal of its Patent Rights for the operation of Franki piles; the rights expire at the end of June next, and your Directors have given notice of the Company's intention to renew them. Another pending capital expenditure will be necessary following upon the removal of the Company's workshops and depot on K.I.L. 524 on Chatham Road. The owners have sold this property and the Company will quite recently served with notice to quit and deliver possession of the land before long. Our present plan is to utilise a portion of K.I.L. 2567 under development and fronting Prince Edward Road whereon to erect the workshops and garage.
This is only a temporary measure permissible under the Special Conditions of Sale of K.I.L. 2567, and sooner or later, we shall have to look around for suitable land for the Company's workshops and depot. There can be no two opinions, I think, that the insecurity of tenure of leased ground is not altogether satisfactory, besides being costly with each removal. We must, therefore, anticipate the time when the more economical course will be to purchase the Company's own land for erecting its workshops and contingent buildings necessary for the proper conduct of the Company's business.

CONSTITUENTS' CONFIDENCE.
In order to inspire constituents' confidence when tendering for contracts which may involve more or less large sums of money, the policy of conserving the Company's resource is one which the Directors consider should commend itself to shareholders' approval. For this and the other reasons that I have just stated your Directors hope that shareholders will not press their desire for the payment of a dividend out of the balance carried forward from the Company's profit. Your Board is of the opinion that any step to force an issue on this point is inimical to the best interests of the Company.

I will now propose that the Report and Statement of Accounts for 1932 as presented be adopted and passed. After this has been seconded I shall be glad to answer any relevant questions shareholders may ask.

SHAREHOLDERS' PROTEST.

Mr. J. Gould, addressing the Shareholders, said that although he intended to vote for the decision of the Directors not to pay a dividend, he felt critical of the present state of affairs. The Directors' fees represented three per cent. of the capital of the Company, and this amount, he considered, was much higher than it should be.

He was strongly of the opinion that the Directors should revert to the fees which they had drawn

CHAIRMAN'S REPLY.

The Hon. Mr. J. P. Braga, in reply, said:
I have listened, as I usually do, to Mr. Gould's remarks at Company meetings with much interest, and feel sorry that I cannot see eye to eye with him in this instance.

For my part, and speaking for myself, I can definitely say that I am not prepared to revert to the lower scale of fees.

It is quite true to say that the Directors' Fees represented three per cent. of the Capital of the Company. This is true because of the fact that the Capital of the Company is now so small after reorganisation. On the other hand, the work of your Directors in the light of its importance and the time devoted to it is far more than Mr. Gould imagines. I need only mention the purchase of K.I.L. 2567 at $326,000 to carry conviction in the statement that a far higher capital amount is involved in the conduct of the business of the Company than three lakhs of dollars.

Prior to 1929, Managing Director's Fees were combined with Salaries and Wages. Before that year I wonder if Mr. Gould would be surprised to learn that the Managing Director drew $18,000 per annum for 1924, the same amount for 1925, and $12,000 for 1926, that is, a total of $48,000 in three years. For the past three years, your Managing Director drew $2,973.38, $4,746.77 and $9,000, respectively, or a total of $16,720.15 against $48,000. The amount represented in the accounts of $9,000 for Managing Director's Fees was in reality half as much as the Managing Director was paid in 1924 and 1925. Since 1929 the Managing Director's salary is shown as a separate item in the Profit and Loss A/c. If the practice, previous to 1929, had been followed in the presentation of the 1932 accounts, there would have appeared the sum of $8,000 for Directors' Fees, the Managing Director's salary being merged in "Salaries and Wages."

NO SINECURE.

I can assure Mr. Gould that the office of Managing Director is no sinecure, neither is that of the ordinary Directors, whose duties are not lightly taken and whose responsibilities are onerous. The Managing Director's is a full-time job. I doubt if shareholders in general would consider that the office is an overpaid one. In 1928, 1929 and 1930 his salary was only $250 a month—a salary that is much less than that drawn by a junior clerk in most commercial houses.

It was in 1929 that shareholders were clamouring to liquidate the Company. To-day a very few of them are insisting on a dividend.
On the 22nd October of that year the present Managing Director was invited to a seat on the Board in his own right. He assumed the duties of Managing Director on the 6th January, 1930.

Before I leave the subject of Directors, a statement to shareholders will bear repetition. It was a reply by the Chairman to certain comments by Mr. Gould at a meeting of shareholders on the 10th August last year. On that occasion the Chairman said:
"Before the Company entered upon its big development scheme, certain Directors, without any thought for extra remuneration, offered to provide their personal guarantees in the event of an overdraft being required from the Company's bankers. . . . There was a voluntary remission on the part of certain Directors and their friends of a substantial amount by way of Underwriting Commission.
A large sum of money had to be assured before embarking upon the land and building scheme."

Joyous Motherhood!

What heart-thills does not motherhood bring when baby is lovely, healthy and happy! This indeed is the fulfilment of woman's destiny.

But what heart-ache she suffers when the little one is ailing, puny and backward! And the entire household is unhappy when baby is ill.

In countless homes all over the world, children have been made well, and parents relieved of anxiety, by Baby's Own Tablets. This splendid juvenile health-safeguard offers both relief and protection from childhood illnesses. Administered at the first signs of "off colour" they set matters right before serious developments can take place. Baby's Own Tablets comprise a safe and efficient prescription devised by a highly qualified medical practitioner of special experience in children's ailments. They are pleasant to taste and appearance, which removes the difficulties which often attend "medicine time."

Baby's Own Tablets are a gentle and non-gripping corrective for constipation, stomach and bowel troubles generally. The tablets quickly relieve cough, cold, convulsions, check diarrhoea and expel worms, whilst during teething they are especially invaluable, easing the pains with almost miraculous speed though they are guaranteed under public analyst's certificate to contain neither opiate nor narcotic.

Safe for the youngest or most delicate baby, and an absolute necessity where there are children below the age of seven, Baby's Own Tablets should be kept handy by all parents.

The money would have been forthcoming from certain Directors and their friends had the shareholders failed to authorise the capital increase."

WOULD RETIRE.

Supporting the Chairman, Mr.
J. Scott Harston said that he did not think the Directors of the Company were overpaid. He had done far more work on behalf of the Company than he was being paid for, and if the Shareholders did not like it, they could have his seat on the Board of Directors back.

"That has been my attitude during the ten years I have been a Director of this Company," Mr.
Scott Harston concluded.

The report and accounts were adopted.

Mr. J. Scott Harston and Mr.
Lo Cheung-shiu were unanimously re-elected to the Board of Directors for the ensuing year.

Messrs. Lowe, Bingham, and Matthews were re-appointed Auditors.

sent at the meeting included:—

NEW WAYS FOR A NEW ERA

"The country needs and, unless
I mistake its temper, the country
demands bold, persistent experimentation. It is common
sense to take a method and try
it; if it fails, admit it frankly
and try another. But above all,
try something." This paragraph comes from President Roosevelt's book, "Looking Forward," and it is an immensely
encouraging declaration of principle, capable of expansion to cover the world at large. It seems
to set forth precisely the attitude
which statesmen must adopt
to-day. The world is not only
struggling to climb out of a very
deep depression. We have come,
as far as it is possible to tell, to
the end of an era in history.
Whatever we do in the future, it
must be something new, something different. The old ways
have proved their inadequacy,
and since we lack perfect wisdom, it seems a reasonable thing
to move ahead by a trial
and error method until we
have found a new way
that will prove satisfactory.
It is a long time since the
world has had a leader who demanded "bold, persistent experimentation"; it is a long time since our own temper has been
of a kind to support such a
man. Ever since the war,
"Don't rock the boat" has been
the slogan. We have asked our
leaders to keep their hands
off economic problems and let well alone. This worked, or seemed to, as long
as things were indeed well enough. But when they went
from bad to worse, and from
worse to worst, it was a catastrophic policy. That we have at last discarded it, and have states-
men who have discarded it, is perhaps the most encouraging
fact on the horizon. No one knows just what is going to get
the world finally out of the depression. No one knows just
how, having got out, we shall
avoid slipping back again. We
can do nothing other than make
experiments. Some of them, in
all probability, will not work,
but that does not matter.

only chance is to keep trying,
over and over again, until we
find what we want. In this lies
the main hope of the World Economic Conference. One
country acting independently
can do little or nothing. Simultaneous action on agreed measures can alone provide a fair
chance for the experiments proposed in what we might term
"applied economics." If the
measures are adopted swiftly
and methodically, the world may
be rescued in double-quick time
from the ruins which appear to be encroaching daily. A realistic appreciation of the facts is all that is necessary, and President Roosevelt will do much to hasten understanding if he carries out his plan to visit London
as a guest at the World Economic Conference. In the light of the example he has set in the United States, his presence
should be an inspiration. But
the war debts problem must
first be removed from the path, temporarily, at least. A moratorium on the June payments in return for the tariff truce the President is seeking would appear to be an adequate quid pro
quo.

More Magisterial Justice

Several police court decisions
recently invite us to believe that
some of our magistrates have a
fixed idea that local ordinances
must be satisfied to the letter,
irrespective of extenuating circumstances. Last week we called attention to a case where a young boy was harshly punished
for a technical offence, where
justice, without mercy, was inexorably applied. Yesterday
came another illuminating example of the Shylock demands
of the Law. A banisher, who
declared he was employed on a
ship undergoing repairs in dock was arrested at Shaikwan. He had no right to be there. Sentence of six months' imprisonment was imposed. Doubtless
the worthy magistrate brought to bear his incontestable knowledge of the Ordinance governing this offence and its usual requirements in the form of punishment, but one looks in vain for
any human touch in the handling
of the case. The police did not
contest the statement that the
man's ship was in Hongkong, undergoing repairs. But the
magistrate decided that he
should be treated in line with
other offenders, and apparently
disregarding the fact that it
would cost the man his job, and
probably turn him from a man
endeavouring to earn an honest living into an unemployed coolie with a dangerous hate of the law and all it stands for, sent
him to prison. If Hongkong
justice is to have no elasticity,
admit of no extenuating circumstances, or the human element
in its practice, then it would seem that the Englishman's best
loved boast will not stand too
close an examination.

The Test of Democracy

"The test of democracy," said
Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, in a recent survey of world affairs,
"is its capacity to listen to argument." It is a question of understanding, of "capacity to listen" to reason, from first to last.
An informed public will not only
be likely to return the best representatives, but will constitute
a body of sound opinion to whose
criticism legislators and administrators will defer. A better intercommunication of ideas between governors and governed
is the crying need of modern democracy—an improved technique
of understanding. But if this is so difficult to attain within the limits of a single nation, how
much more difficult in intercourse between nations. Two nations may speak different
languages, as French and German, or they may both speak English, but the connotation of
political words will not be exactly
the same in England and America. But there are greater difficulties than that presented by language. There are different
circumstances, different local
needs, and different prejudices
in the light of which words and
arguments assume different
meanings. The test of democracy is "capacity to listen"
to reason—the people of one
country endeavouring to put
themselves at the viewpoint of another.

RIGHT WAY TO CLEAR SLUM AREAS

By ALFRED C. BOSSOM, M.P.

Signs abound that both the
central and the local authorities of England are about to renew the attack upon the slums.

They cannot do so with any real
and lasting effect unless the nature
of the problem before them is rightly understood and unless some
broad and pivotal principle, as applicable to London as to Birmingham, to Glasgow as to Manchester,
is invoked to deal with it.

Slum clearance is popular every-
where except among slum dwellers.
They often dislike being moved.
They have become used to their
quarters and attached to them.
The neighbourhood has grown
familiar to them. Their friends
are there, their school, their favourite public-house, and the police man at the corner is a known
and trusted personage. Above all,
they are near their work.

MOVING REPUGNANT.

To uproot them from all these associations and conveniences and
to dump them down in a strange
locality that resents their intru-
sion as much as they themselves
resent the wrench from their old
habitations is to cause a social upheaval that reformers may welcome, but that its supposed beneficiaries find most frequently re-
pugnant.

They fight against it for all they
are worth. They get out injunctions; they invoke legal aid; they cling with passion to the wretched tenements that none the less represent home to them as much as
his suburban villa represents home
to the City clerk, or the manor
house to the squire.

Then, again, the slum landlords
are for the most part content with
things as they are. They draw
rents for properties that ought to be wholly unrentable; there is usually a case to be put up before any dwellings are officially condemned,
and the law is there, always tender
towards existing rights, patient as regards delay.

THE QUICKER WAY.

The result is that it takes about
ten years and a huge effort finally
to clear a slum area in London and to rehoused its inhabitants. Nor is there any guarantee under our present unworkable piecemeal procedure that the families removed
will be rehoused in their own
neighbourhood, or that overcrowding
in the same locality will not at once
begin to breed fresh slums.

I believe there is a better,
quicker, and a more economical way
of tackling this problem.

In London and in the provincial
centres the measure of what ought
to be done in the way of slum
clearance has been pretty well
taken. That is to say, it is accurately known what districts and
how many houses call for demolition and reconstruction, and the
numbers of people that these processes will involve.

This should make it feasible for
each authority to work out a comprehensive scheme embracing its entire area and proceeding by a fixed time-table. Such a plan of operations would in itself tend

greatly to reduce the costs and the
inconveniences and uncertainties of
our present methods.

But at the centre of the busi-
nesslike and systematic campaign
which is essential to any true
victory I would place the idea of
clearance by a new method of
"decanting." That, indeed, is the pivot on which the whole movement
must turn.

Let me make its mechanism and
significance clearer by the humble
analogy of the hotel bath. It is
used by many people; it is cleaned
and prepared for guest after guest;
yet it remains a single, manageable
convenience functioning at the
minimum of cost.

DECANTING CENTRES.

Similarly I am convinced that the key to slum clearance is the erection, in the neighbourhood of the
tenants who are about to be dis-
possessed, of up-to-date tenement
houses to which they can be moved
and from which they will return to
the new buildings that meanwhile
will have been put up on their old
sites.

These up-to-date tenement
houses, these decanting centres,
would be of the appropriate size to
meet the requirements of the locality. They might accommodate
no more than 250 people; they
might also accommodate double or
quadruple that number. The point
is that, being used over and over again, being cleaned and done up
after occupation by each fresh batch
of tenants from the slums, they
could handle a population out of
all proportion to their actual dimensions—just as one hotel bathroom
people a day.

Some plan of this kind has been
tried at Amsterdam and with the
most encouraging results. I suggest that it is universally applicable
and should be adopted throughout
the whole of the United Kingdom.

Suppose that the matter on hand
is that of pulling down and rebuilding a slum area containing
2,000 people. A model tenement
house is erected near by to serve as a decanter. It holds, say, 500
people, and that number is drafted
into it. The moment they leave the
slums their old quarters are demolished and rebuilding begins. In
a very few months a block is ready
for occupation, the "decanter" is
emptied, cleaned, and renovated and
another detachment of 500 takes possession, while the first batch is
back on its old site but no longer in
a slum.

SAVING OF TIME.

By repeating this operation four
times a population of 2,000 can be
rehoused—and this with the minimum disturbance to the routine of
their daily lives, at a great saving
of time and with the least possible
expense to the ratepayers. And
at the end of it the "decanter"
would still remain and could be used
by permanent tenants.

There is another advantage in
this method which those who are
experienced in the realities of life
in the slums will be quick to appreciate—namely, the comparative
ease with which in a "decanter" the
tenants can be introduced to modern
household appliances and con-
right use of them.

"Now, remember, the gentleman seated next to Mr. Wells is his best client, so please don't spill anything on him."

THIS WATER SHORTAGE

By Edward "Waterman" Kelly.

IT seems that there is an-
other shortage of water in Hongkong.

We remember the last
water shortage we were in.
It was in the great wide open spaces where men were
mean.

There had only been a hundred inches of rain in six months,
and the place was so dry we
couldn't wear boots because the
tongues always hung out.

We used to get our water by
camel team from Oodnadatta.
Every time the camel team arrived
the whole town would get drunk
at the pub.

"What'll you have?" we'd ask
Pete.

"Oh, I'll drink mine neat," he'd
say.

It was too strong for us, though.
We'd have to break ours down with
a dash of whiskey.

To get rid of the mourning after
the night before feeling next morning, we'd take a couple of aspirins,
washed down with gin.

To obtain water for washing the
glasses, the scullery maids used to
peel onions over the kitchen sink.
Hence the expression, "Well, fer
weepin' in the sink!"

But getting back to Hongkong.
We understand that the government will have plenty of water
when they complete the Shing Mun
Dam. Conversely the public will
have plenty of Dams until they get
water. So everybody ought to be satisfied. Personally, we intend to stick to soda.

SEZ YOU.

Beer bung boom boosts business in Berwind, W. Va. Buying bigger and better bungs
brings bright burst of balm to
the bank-burdened.

Coldest spot in the world is Vorhoyvansk, where it gets 95 below zero. Imagine trying to pronounce it with your teeth chattering.

Some of those frozen assets undoubtedly froze so easily because
they had been well-watered.

man's fancy lightly turns to
thoughts of unrestricted balances, double liability, and deductions for minor dependents.

A poet's work is but the reflection of his mind, says one of them. Maybe that accounts for all
the blank verse.

We don't mind paying the
fiddler after our spree of the
past few years, but are we going to have to pay the whole
blooming orchestra?

Somehow, you're pretty apt to
feel low after a high old time.

O BLOOMING ROSE.

There is still one pale rose blooming in the garden; one faint
memory of the days that are dead,
of the greenly that have gone the
way of all flesh.

And the other day, being full of sentiment and aet dumping (with raisins) and feeling rather sloppy,
we went out and mused most
romantically upon that rose. In fact, we don't mind telling you, between friends, of course (but don't let it go any further), that we
even started writing a poem about
it.

Yes, we did. We mooned about,
and scratched our head, and came
over all Tennysonian; and after
a lot of internal struggling we took paper and pencil and wrote.

But just then a large and fierce
lumbago came roaring down the
garden and bit us in the small of
doors, and crawled into bed, and
were totally unconscious for over eight hours. . . . Went off to sleep, you know.

You can see the difficulty we have
blooming rose in the garden and the blooming lumbago under his anterior trouser-buttons trying to capture the right Spirit. . . . Not
the bottled stuff, but . . . Bah!
And that is what everybody else

THE PROSPECT OF THE SEIZURE OF THE CHINESE EASTERN RAILWAY BY MANCHUKUO, FOLLOWING THE SOVIET'S REFUSAL TO RETURN THE LOCOMOTIVES WHICH MANCHUKUO CLAIMS TO BE THE PROPERTY OF THE C.E.R., IS AROUSING MUCH SPECULATION.

Soviet forces are continuing to make a show of force on the Manchuli frontier.

The Moscow newspapers have given considerable prominence to a dispatch received from Harbin, which alleges that the Japanese consul-general in Harbin, Mr. Morishima, has virtually taken over the administration of the Manchurian side of the C.E.R. Board.

It is claimed that the violent acts which resulted in the suspension of through traffic between the C.E.R. and the Trans-Baikal Railway were carried out on direct instructions from him, that he dictated the letters sent to M. Slavutsky, Soviet consul-general in Harbin, although they were signed by Mr. Sze Li-ping, the diplomatic agent of Manchukuo, and that he similarly dictated the letters sent to M. Kuznetsov, vice-president of the C.E.R. Board, by Mr. Li Shao-keng, president of the Board.

PLAN OF ACTION:

"Competent sources contend," the dispatch proceeds, "that Japanese circles in Manchuria have drawn up a plan of action in regard to the C.E.R. and have submitted same to the Kwantung military headquarters for approval. This plan calls for attacks on Soviet rights in the C.E.R., the ousting of the Soviet side and the seizure of the railway by the Japanese under the pretext of its transfer to Manchukuo. The means of implementing this plan for the gross violation of the Peking and Mukden agreements are the complete disorganization of the railway's normal activities, particularly on the eastern line, the interruption of freight traffic to and from the Trans-Baikal and Ussuri Railways, undermining the financial position of the C.E.R., and the creation of impossible working conditions for the Soviet side of the C.E.R."

ABSURDITY OF CLAIMS.

The plan of action includes the absolutely unfounded accusations against M. Rudy, manager of the C.E.R., charging him with arbitrary conduct and alleging that he admitted the detention in Soviet territory of locomotives and cars belonging to the C.E.R. These accusations are made in face of the irrefutably established fact that the locomotives in question are the property of the U.S.S.R. and that the C.E.R. has no rights as to their disposition, while concerning the cars the absurdity of the claims made is obvious from the fact that an exchange of cars between the Soviet and C.E.R. systems is a customary arrangement. There are more Soviet cars on the C.E.R. than vice versa.

"In the long run," the dispatch concludes, "all these anti-Soviet attacks are aimed practically at the seizure of the C.E.R. and its inclusion in the Manchukuo railway system under Japan's jurisdiction."

The Soviet Government organ, Izvestia, says that if the zeal of Japanese officials in North Manchuria has urged them to such adventurist and provocative actions, we would like to hope that they are happening without the knowledge of the Japanese Government, which, as has frequently been observed before, may be confronted by accomplished facts.

The Japanese Government assumed responsibility for the non-violation of the rights and interests of the U.S.S.R. in the Chinese Eastern Railway. This should be sufficient. No hide-and-seek game can fool anybody as the Japanese representatives in Harbin desire to do.

"When a hawker puts his stall down in Queen's Road Central, Des Voeux Road Central or any other main thoroughfare where it is dangerous, you can jump on him. We all know a hawker cannot carry his stall the whole day, and I myself have told them that if they want to rest they can rest in a side street. The defendant had gone into Gilman Street, which is a side street, and he was again chased," remarked Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning, in cautioning a hawker, for obstruction.

Sub-Inspector Smith said that Gilman Street was a car park. They rested behind vehicles and on moving away left a lot of filth on the ground. Admittedly, it was not a serious offence, but there was continuous traffic in that street.

His Worship remarked he would go down and see the car park one day.

A $1,000 claim under a promissory note succeeded at the Supreme Court this morning before Mr. Justice Lindell. Plaintiff was Santa Singh represented by Mr. F. G. Nigel, and the defendants were Hung Yau and Chan Yung-chung, of 122 Gloucester Road, Wanchai.

The highest temperature recorded during April was 85 degrees on the 18th and 20th. The lowest temperature was 58 degrees on April 1. In April 1932, 85 degrees was also the highest temperature, being recorded twice, once on the 23rd and again on the 28th. The minimum temperature in April last year was 62 degrees on the 16th.

The following is the monthly return, for April, of the St. John Ambulance New Territory Medical Benevolent Branch, showing the number of cases treated at each station—Ping Shan 820, Ha Tung 800, San Tin 802, Tung Wan 1,012, Shatin 535, Kam Tin 1,117, Cheung Chau 1,610, Ting Kok 420. Of the total of 7,623, the maternity cases numbered 67.

"Look out, there's a car coming." With this warning, two young Chinese drew an aged hawker to the side of Connaught Road Central, where they relieved him of his watch and chain. One of the culprits escaped but the other was caught. The latter appeared before Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning. He admitted a number of previous convictions, and was sentenced to six months' gaol.

The B.B.C. announces that Mr. Malcolm Frost, who was unfortunately taken ill in South Africa almost at the outset of his tour on behalf of the Corporation in connexion with the Empire Broadcasting Service and had to return to England, has now completely recovered his health. Sir Cecil Clementi, former Governor of Hongkong, is again the subject of criticism in a leading Singapore journal.

The Straits Times, after detailing Sir Cecil's pronouncements of his views on future expansion and development in Malaya, comments: "Now we have no quarrel whatever with occasional visions. They are harmless enough in themselves and, conjured up for us by a mass of words, as those mentioned undoubtedly have been, they tend to divert our attention from much closer and far less pleasant considerations."

It is a good thing that we should forget our troubles now and again, but dreams are unsatisfying fare and we cannot escape a fear that we are being asked to indulge in them to excess while problems which demand immediate and practical approach are allowed to become worse through inattention.

STARK REALITY.

For instance, if we come down from the realm of dreams and thrust aside for the moment the attractive prospect of a through railway system from Tanjong Pagar to Victoria, of a wonderful hill station at Penang, of a Rotten Row and a Henley at Singapore, we find as a matter of stark reality that there are many human beings in this country on the verge of starvation as a result of their inability to obtain employment. We find much that may be criticised as unnecessary expenditure in a time of great stress.

We find the trade of the Colony impeded by the inability of various administrative bodies to find a solution, based on the principle of the greatest good for the greatest number, of an apparently simple problem which has arisen out of the grant of certain preferential duties. We find these and many other questions which demand immediate action and as they strike us, necessarily forcibly, we cannot but feel that this is no time for further dreaming. We may thank His Excellency for the many excursions into the realm of fancy which he has led so delightfully, but we submit respectfully that until such suffering and hardship as are known to exist around us have been alleviated, talk of Henleys and Rotten Rows is apt to turn our thoughts to Plautus:

Nihil agit qui didicentem verbis solatur suis;
Is est amicus qui in re dubia re
juvat, ubi re est opus.

TILL SEASON ENDS WHO WILL FIGHT DOYLE?

SENIOR SHIELD FINAL SEQUEL

MEANS LOSS OF STAR PLAYER

Tam Kong-pak, South China Athletic's star inside left has been suspended from taking part in any football matches arranged by the Hongkong Football Association until the end of the season.

This decision was reached at an adjourned meeting of the Management Committee last night, and it means that Tam will not be able to appear in any further league or representative matches until after May 17, the current season closing on that date.

Tam's suspension is the sequel to his dismissal from the field by the referee in the Senior Shield final between South China and the South Wales Borderers on April 8.

The first hearing took place a week ago, but was adjourned pending the appearance before the committee of the referee and of certain spectators to give evidence.

GUILTY OF MISCONDUCT.

These testimonies were given last night, when as a result, the committee found Tam guilty of misconduct towards one of the South Wales Borderers players.

The incident at the time caused considerable speculation among the onlookers. It occurred towards the end of the game, when Tam, then playing as third back, came into collision with Harris of the Borderers.

To many it appeared that the players exchanged blows, but the referee, who was near the scene, had no hesitation in giving Tam marching orders.

CAN'T PLAY TO-DAY.

Tam's suspension comes into operation forthwith, which means that he will not be available against the Athletic this afternoon, neither will he be able to appear in any of his team's remaining league matches.

His suspension also means his absence from the Chinese Amateur Athletic Federation eleven to oppose the Hongkong Football Association team in the Governor's Cup on Saturday.

It is expected that Leung Tat-wing will be brought in the South China team for the rest of their league matches.

Inability to raise a team has forced St. Joseph's to postpone their First Division match with the Borderers scheduled for this afternoon, and as a result only one senior division game will be played.

IMPORTANT TIE.

This is an important tie, South China meeting Chinese Athletic for the second time of the season. The game will be played on the Club ground at 5.15 and if South China win nothing can stop them from capturing the championship.

At their meeting last week, the Athletic were decidedly unlucky to concede the points by the odd goal in three. On the other hand their amazing collapse against the Navy last Saturday does not encourage confidence in their ability to turn the tables to-day, and South China, even without Tam Kong-pak, should annex two more points.

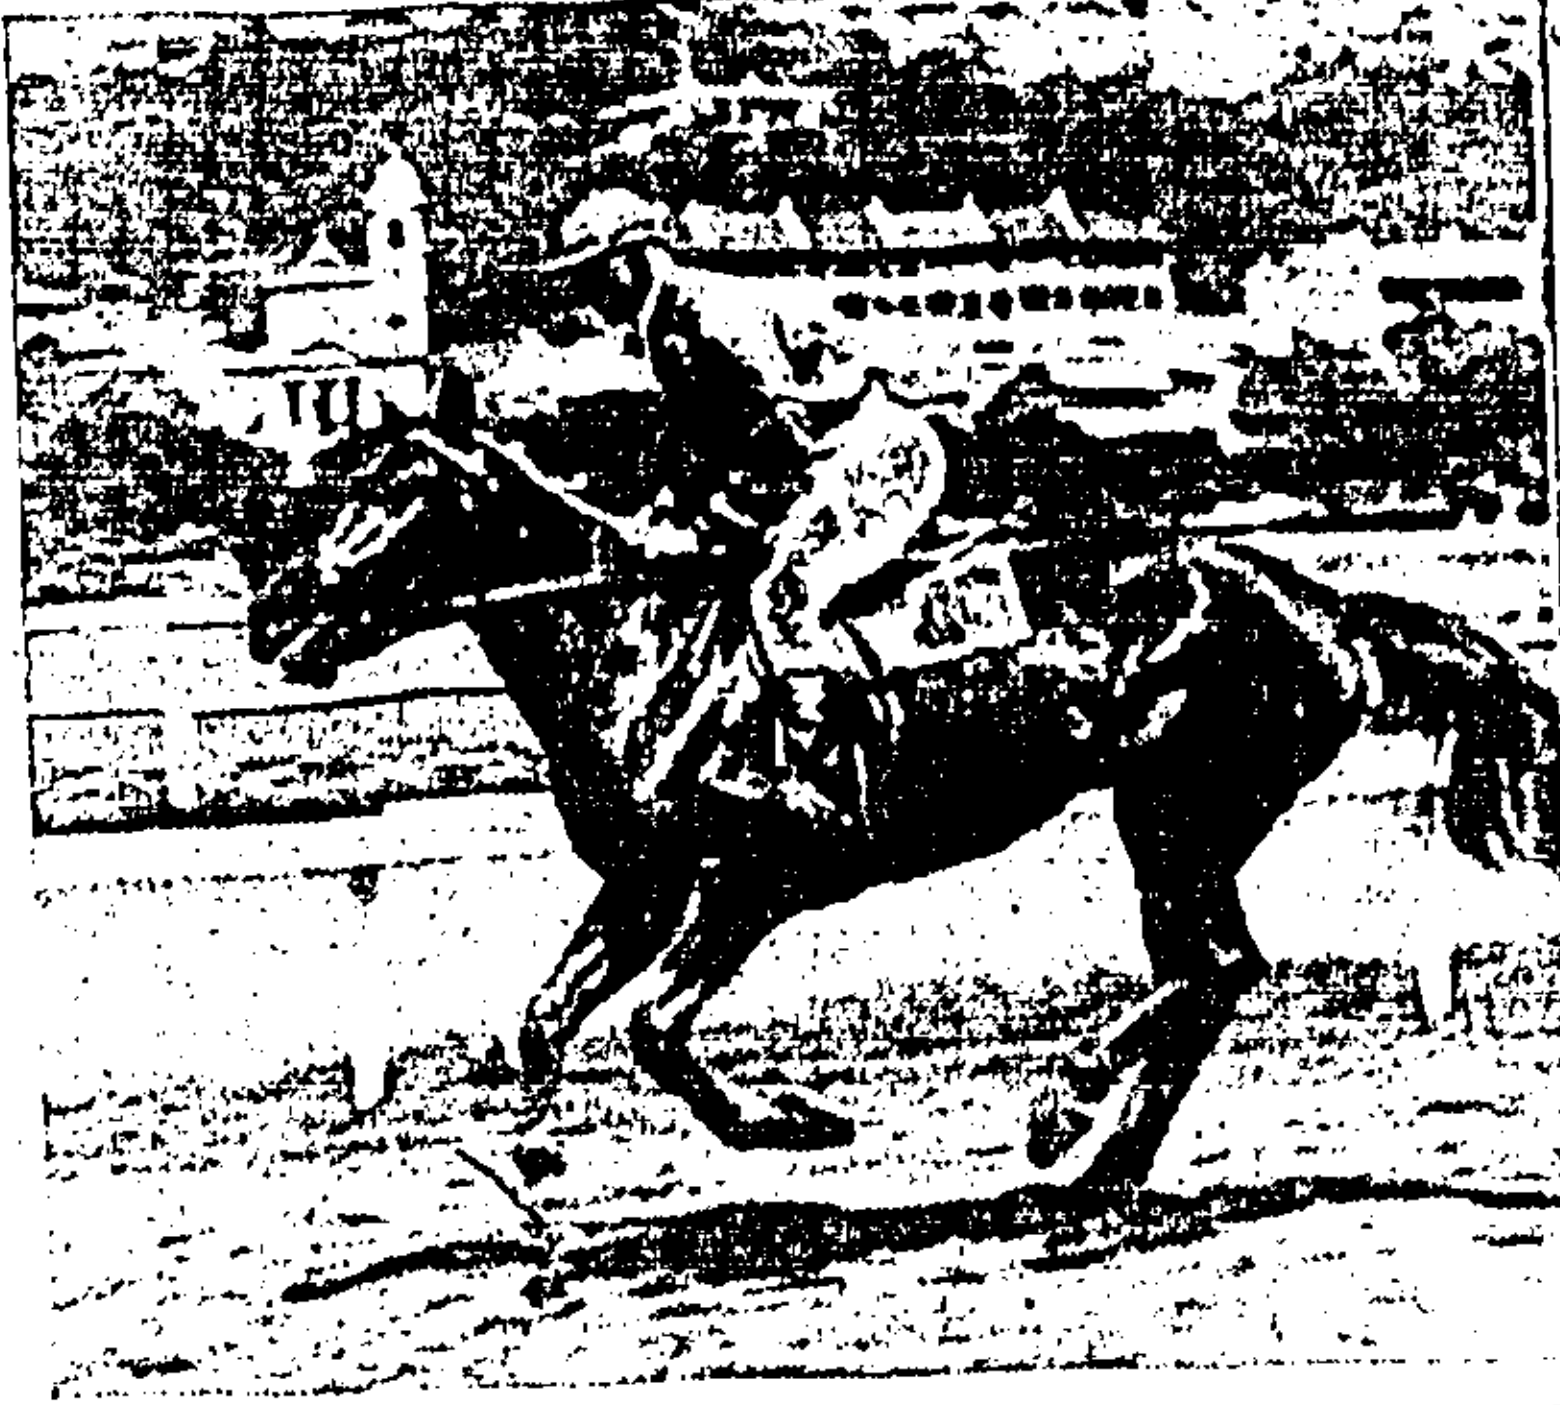

The other league match this afternoon is a Third Division tie between the Royal Engineers and R.A.S.C. at Chatham Road at 6.15.

FORMOSAN ISLANDS TOUR

The Philippines swimming contingent is leaving for Formosa on May 7 on board the Mexico Maru. The team will meet the Formosa aquatic stars in dual swimming competition next month.

Simultaneously with the announcement of the date for the departure of the local team the P. A. A. F. also announced that Mohix, a famed Moro swimmer from Zamboanga will arrive in Manila this week to participate in the final tryouts which will be held at the Rizal Memorial Natatorium.

After the tryouts the 18 members of the team will be selected. The delegation will be accompanied by a coach and manager on its barn storming invasion of Formosa, with 14 members.

All the best swimmers of the Philippines are competing for a berth in the team. T. Ydefonso and A. Jikrum, crack Army breaststrokes and who were placed third and fifth, respectively in the world's Olympic swimming meet at Los Angeles are among those taking part in the tryouts. Ali, Sto. Tomas U. aquatic star and also a member of the P. I. world's Olympic athletic delegation is also making a strong bid to be a member of the team.

Clever Sunderland Scheme

One very successful move has been introduced by Sunderland. It is worked by the centre forward and usually one of the inside forwards. When Gurney sees an attack developing down one wing he runs over to what is really a forward outside position near the side line and the ball is quickly pushed through to him. Often the ball beats the back and, racing clear, Gurney compels either the other back or the centre half to come over and challenge him otherwise he would be left with a straight run through to goal. Even if the pass does not put Gurney in possession beyond the back he has the chance to collect the ball and beat him.

In the meantime, his wing forward on the opposite flank has come into the middle of the field knowing that Gurney's next move will be to pass right across to him. This pass only has to escape an opponent and the wing man can take the ball in his stride and go on into a shooting position.

It was this move which gave Sunderland one of their vital goals in their first cup tie with Derby County and it has produced many other goals. The Derby players were familiar with it and I believe that they had prepared plans to deal with it, but as I have said the movement caught them napping.

"SEAMAN" WATSON MATCHED

British Champ to Meet Kid Chocolate

Kid Chocolate of Cuba, holder of two world's boxing titles, and Samuel Thomas "Seaman" Watson, British champion, have been matched to fight for the New York Boxing Commission's feather-weight championship on May 12.

In the encounter the Cuban will be defending champion, as he holds the N. Y. Boxing body's feather crown, which he annexed last October after technically knocking out Lew Feldman of Brooklyn.

THRILLER EXPECTED.

The pair should have met last December, but because of Chocolate's difficulties with American immigration officials the bout was postponed. The Cuban, with his manager, Luis Gutierrez, was later permitted to re-apply for admission into the United States.

In the intervening time Fidel La Barba, former flyweight champion, was substituted for Chocolate and met Watson, losing to the Britisher in a 12-round bout held early this year in New York.

The New York Boxing commission first questioned Watson's ability as a fighter but later approved of him after the British Boxing Board of Control protested of the treatment accorded the British champion.

The bout between the two is expected to be a thriller, as both are willing fighters, rugged and hard-hitting.

qualifying for the Captain's Cup for April at 75 net. Mrs. Kirk wins the tie on the last six holes.

An aggregate competition will be held at Deepwater Bay during the month of May, conditions are posted in the Club House.

"MOST IMPROVED HEAVYWEIGHT"

Jack Doyle has gone to his native Ireland for another holiday whilst his managers are working their wits for all they are worth to find what is termed a suitable opponent for him to fight at Olympia on May 18.

The ordinary boxing follower would be able to suggest a string of names as long as your arm, but it is doubtful if any one of them would be regarded by Doyle's connections as the suitable opponent.

It is easy to understand where the difficulty comes in. The plain fact is that Doyle, through no fault of his own, has been given an entirely false position in the heavy-weight division. His fame is out of all proportion to his real standing as a boxer.

In case someone reminds me that Petersen and Pettifer, two novices, did very well at Olympia not so long ago, I must point out that Petersen had the heavy-weight title at stake and the Lonsdale Belt was also thrown in, not to mention the daffodils and roses.

Petersen was offered the fight with Doyle for May 18, as well as sundry other engagements, and much ado was made of £5,000 being demanded. Petersen was not free to accept the match because he had already signed to engage in three open-air contests in Wales. The

CLAIMS OF ROWLES.

If the problem of Doyle's opponent is still calling for wet towels and aspirin I should like to suggest that the logical opponent stands out a mile. What about Seaman Rowles?

There is little doubt that the naval boxer is the most improved of all our young heavy-weights and would certainly be able to give Petersen plenty of trouble. He won the Crystal Palace tournament because he was the outstanding boxer in the competition. Since then he has shown marked improvement with each succeeding contest and he stands out as the man for Doyle.

MISS HEWITT AND WIGHTMAN CUP

When Miss Joan Ridley, the Suffolk girl, won the women's singles at the Peddington tournament last month, there ended one of the most remarkable weeks in women's competitive play seen for several years.

The eight ranked players were bowled over like ninpins, and the unranked player "came home alone." Miss Ridley beat Miss Healey (the No. 1 ranked player), Miss K. E. Stammers (the conqueror of Miss Betty Nuthall), and finally Mrs. King (better known as Miss Phyllis Mudford) by 6-3, 6-2.

What to make of it all will cause the L.T.A. selectors some anxious moments, for the form book has been torn to shreds. If the Wightman Cup team were chosen to-day Miss Ridley would "pick herself," but much may happen before England's chosen are nominated.

Miss Sheila Hewitt, the Hampshire girl, is the one to watch. She has beaten the stars from other countries, a very different thing from one English player beating another. It is firmly believed she is Great Britain's real Wightman Cup hope.

Or will you be a victim of pyorrhea, lose your smile, your energy, your vitality... and maybe him? Pyorrhea is that dreaded disease of the mouth that can do just these things. It attacks the gums, maybe for years before you know it! Then, gums become soft, tender, lose their natural lovely pink. Teeth loosen and drop out or must be pulled out!

Don't you take such chances when you can easily safeguard against any such tragic ending to your happy life. Start at once by brushing your teeth every morning and night, with Forhan's for the Gums.

This dentifrice is more than a tooth paste. It prevents pyorrhea, keeps the gums firm and healthy, and the teeth gleaming white and sound.

STATEMENT ON POSITION REGARDING CHINA

With reference to reports published recently in the foreign and Chinese newspapers to the effect that the "traffic offices" of the three cable companies at Shanghai—the Great Northern, Eastern Extension and Commercial Pacific Co.—will soon be taken over and re-organised by officials of the Chinese Government Radio Administration, it is announced by the Cable Companies that these statements refer to the carrying into effect of the stipulations regarding the Companies' acceptance and delivery offices at Shanghai, contained in the new Agreements between the Ministry of Communications and the Companies, signed in Nanking on April 5.

The following statement is issued by the Cable Companies:

The term "traffic offices" used in the reports published in the press is misleading as it may give the impression that a change will be made as regards the Companies' operating offices or instrument rooms. This is incorrect. According to the new Agreements there will be no change whatever in respect of the said offices, and the working of the Companies' submarine cables, i.e. the actual telegraph service via the cables, will continue to be exclusively in the hands of the Companies themselves exactly as hitherto.

No Change in Service.

What is going to take place in that the Companies' offices for handling in and delivery of telegrams, i.e. the Companies' counter offices, at Shanghai will, in future, be managed in the name of the Bureau of International Telegraphs of the Ministry of Communications. The said offices, which have hitherto been under the exclusive control of the Companies themselves, will be formally handed over to the Bureau at an early date but, at the same time, it has been expressly stipulated and arranged that the working of the offices will be continued as hitherto so that, vis-a-vis the public, there will actually be no change as far as the acceptance and delivery service is concerned. The Bureau will take over the total staffs at present attached to the acceptance and delivery offices of the three Companies, and at the head of each of the three offices there will be a Chief appointed by the Ministry of Communications and an Associate-Chief (Danish, British and American respectively) nominated by the Company concerned, and the Chief and the Associate-Chief of each office will jointly deal with all matters relating to the acceptance and delivery of telegrams. Furthermore, assurances have been obtained from, and detailed arrangements have been made with, the Ministry of Communications ensuring that the acceptance and delivery of cablegrams will be continued exactly as hitherto and that the present high standard of efficiency will be maintained.

Misleading Statements.

It has also been repeatedly reported in the press that the Agreements between the Ministry of Communications and the Cable Companies contain stipulations regarding the "recovery" by the Ministry of land cables and overhead wires and that "the lines" of the Companies have already been taken over by the Ministry in conformity with the said stipulations.

These statements are likewise entirely misleading. The submarine cables of the Companies are—as is probably well known—not actually landed at Shanghai but at Woosung or Paoshan, and the connections between the said landing places and the Companies' operating offices at Shanghai are established by means of several underground cables—in former years overhead wires.

The said connections were established by the Companies themselves—naturally in agreement with the Chinese Telegraph Authorities—and were paid for and have all along been maintained by the Companies. Nevertheless, the Chinese Government has always claimed and insisted that, whilst remaining at the disposal of the Companies for their own use, all the said connections should formally be the property of the Government, and they were therefore ceded to the latter against the payment of a purely nominal sum (50 Mexican dollars for each underground cable).

For many years past the Chinese Government Telegraph Administration has thus been the nominal owner of all the underground cables and overhead wires in question, and what has actually happened now, is only that some of the old connections, including the overhead wires, which are no longer required by the Companies for the working of their cables, have been handed over to the said Chinese Government Telegraph Administration for the latter's own use, whilst a sufficient number of connections remain at the disposal of the Companies exactly as hitherto. At the same time arrangements have been made between the said Administration and the Companies to the effect that, in case of interruptions of the underground cables, the parties shall assist each other by providing emergency connections to take the place of the interrupted circuits. Altogether a perfectly reasonable and businesslike arrangement.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Sir,—I wish to draw the attention of the Authorities to the revolting practice adopted by the police in their work of shooting dogs found without a muzzle, to give one instance out of many that have been brought to my notice. This is the case of a small shaggy-haired terrier which had just strayed out from the owner's house and was cruelly shot at and its paw shattered by the bullet. The little animal managed to run home with its bleeding paw a monument of the cruel method adopted to enforce this regulation.

No-one will have any objection to the animals being captured and taken to Kennedy Town Kennels, and I know that the S. P.C.A. will take them from the Police and convey them to the Kowloon Home in order that the Authorities will not require to maintain the animals. Therefore I say, have a little mercy and give the animal a chance for its life. I grant all that may be said with reference to the danger from the terrible risk of rabies should a dog get loose and bite anyone. This warning should be sufficient to all dog owners to observe the regulations. But instructions should certainly be given to those responsible for the capture of the animals to observe the laws of humanity and give the dog a chance.

A cage is provided for the conveyance of the animal to the kennels where they may be examined. Therefore there is no necessity for the use of a gun.

"Of course. But Steve would persuade her that I was the best bet. He'd make her think—"

They were interrupted by a shout from without. Bright headlights threw the hedges into artificial daylight as the car smashed into the darkened space before the entrance. Steve, bareheaded, jumped from the driver's seat and raced to the door.

"You are the most beautiful thing in the world," Barry was saying softly when Steve appeared in the door.

Barry turned. "Well we don't seem to be getting anywhere," he said smiling. "Steve, as soon as I get this girl halfway agreeable to a dinner date you and Lottie have to break in and ruin everything!"

"You can date her up any time," Steve said. "I've got to be in town by 10:30. Come on—everybody ready?"

"All right then," Barry was saying in a low tone. "Have dinner with me Monday? Tuesday then? Confound it, Wednesday?"

"Call me Wednesday morning," Mona agreed and the three of them were off.

Monday and Tuesday passed for Mona in a glow of happiness. She was to see Barry Wednesday.

But Barry did not call on Wednesday. The telephone rang frequently. Five calls came for her but none was from Barry. At four o'clock Steve telephoned.

Barry was ill, he said. Out at Twilands. Mrs. Faxon was afraid it was influenza.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

The Bidding

South passed. West holding two and one-half tricks and a biddable club suit, opened the bidding with one club. North doubled. Under the writer's system of contract bidding, double shows at least three and one-half tricks. East passed and South took out with diamonds. West passed and North boldly jumped to three No Trump.

The Play

East has the opening lead. Not having a strong suit of his own to establish, he opened the top of his partner's suit, the seven of clubs. West played the three spot to discourage the club lead and North, the declarer, won the trick with the ten.

If the declarer could find the King of hearts in the West hand and the hearts were to break, he could go game. With an "unfortunate" distribution the hearts may lie wrong, therefore he should immediately try to establish dummy's long diamond suit by leading the long spot, and when East plays the seven, the five is played from dummy and West wins the trick with the king.

West can see that the declarer is endeavoring to establish his diamonds and that the queen of spades may act as an entry to dummy. He therefore abandons the club suit and shifts to a spade, but the declarer wins the trick with the ace and leads the four of diamonds. East plays the jack, declarer plays the queen from dummy, and West refuses to win the trick, trying to block off the diamond suit. The declarer should immediately return the ten of diamonds to establish this suit. West wins with the ace and East discards the six of hearts. West returns the three of spades which the declarer now allows to ride to dummy's queen East having played the ten. The two good diamonds are cashed from dummy, West discarding a spade and a club, the declarer the five of hearts and jack of hearts, East discarding two clubs.

The declarer has two finesses which he can take—the heart or the club. But as West is marked with the king of clubs the club finesses is the one that should be taken rather than the heart, which may lose. West plays the

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES.

Keen judges who have seen "Mischievous" regard it as the funniest British comedy yet made. It is a riot of laughter from the opening to the final fade-out. It is a British and Dominion production featuring Ralph Lynn, who has established himself as Britain's leading screen comedian. The story by Ben Travers is in the style of "Rookery Nook", "Plunder" and other famous Aldwych stage successes, and maintains the audience in a shimmer of merriment throughout its length. Ralph Lynn is provided with one of his characteristic parts in the development of which he is even at his very best. The film uproariously describes a matrimonial affair into which Lynn intrudes with his customary eagerness and excellent intentions. Naturally, he complicates the issue, but in good time runs against Wilfred Shottler and forgets all about his mission, falling in love with the charming girl. It all ends happily, the end of the film being more than ludicrously ridiculous in the Ralph Lynn sense.

"Rockabye"

"Rockabye" brings Constance Bennett to the Central Theatre to-day in a daring, sophisticated revel of heart abandon. The extreme range of human emotions is played by the star in a dazzling, racing tumult of contrasting situations. The characterization by Miss Bennett shows her rock-solid sense of a mute and a mute dilemma made more pointed by a mother instinct that reveals itself in a worship of children. This worship, replete with sympathy and appeal, builds into a climax of great dramatic sacrifice.

Isa Bevan

Isa Bevan, one of the most beautiful girls in the English film studios, features in "Puppets of Fate" at the Queen's Theatre from to-morrow. Miss Bevan started her stage career as one of the famous Cohan "Young Ladies" in the revue "This Year of Grace". She went with this revue to New York, where she played small parts and was then engaged for the American production of "Bitter Sweet". On her return to England she appeared in a film "The Star Reporter" and as a result of her work in this picture was awarded a contract for films by Mr. Basil Dean, for whom she appeared in "Nine Till Six", "The Sign of Four", etc.

Isa then went back to the stage and played a leading part in Priestley's play "Dangerous Corner," and nine, declarer finesses the queen and East plays the three of hearts. The declarer then cashes his ace of clubs, king of spades and the ace of hearts, losing the last trick to the king of hearts. By being persistent in establishment of his diamond suit, the declarer has made four no trump.

Isa Bevan is a platinum blonde, with blue eyes, and is just twenty-two years old.

"Mr. Robinson Crusoe"

When Douglas Fairbanks cast about for an idea for his current production, "Mr. Robinson Crusoe", coming to the King's Theatre on Friday, he demanded one thing. It must be a joyful subject that would prove not only entertainment in these days of long shadows, but carry an optimistic and hopeful note.

It is a tale of a modern Robinson Crusoe, who finds himself upon an uninhabited island. Instead of being depressed and giving up, he pitches in and makes the best of things through sheer grit and perseverance.

In the cast are William Farnum, once a star in his own right, Miss Maria Alba, Earle Browne and others. Edward Sutherland directed, and Tom J. Geraghty worked with the star on the story and dialogue. "It is a joyful story of the South Seas," said Doug, "made in an earthy paradise and song—a romantic fantasy of to-day. Heretofore most pictures of life in the islands have depicted the drab and the sordid—the staggering beach-combers, the wasters and ne-o-de-well-s—unpleasant people in unpleasant surroundings and situations."

The theme of the tale is keyed in the purposeful character of a modern Robinson Crusoe who tackles and meets every emergency with this thought: "There's a way out." In this is reflected a spirit of hope and optimism, a concrete truth that "happiness is just around the corner".

MONEY NEEDED

GOVERNMENT'S NEW EXPENDITURE

REQUIREMENTS BY POLICE FORCE

Among the special items which will come before the Finance Committee of the Legislative Council to-morrow are the following:

A special expenditure of $4,000 for Police Force recall signals.

It is pointed out that on the introduction of motor patrols as recommended by the Retrenchment Commission it has become necessary to evolve a scheme of recall signals for these patrols.

The success of the motor patrol scheme largely depends on the facilities for rapid communication with the patrol and unless a scheme of recall signals is instituted the success of the patrol scheme would only be partial.

It is proposed to erect recall signals at the various Police Stations in the Colony to allow men on patrol duty to be recalled quickly in case of emergency.

The estimated cost of these recall signals is $4,000 i.e. Hongkong Stations $1,500, Kowloon and New Territory Stations $2,100 and as no provision has been made in 1933 Estimates a special vote is recommended.

MORE MARRIAGES.

And additional $12,275 is also asked for the rent of Police Stations and married police quarters. Provision of $7,754 was made in the estimates, but it is now revealed that a greater number of officers have married than was antioned in the estimates. The sum of $4,250 is required for the provision of Office for the Sanitary Central District Office, and the Sanitary Office, which is pointed out, has become an immediate necessity with the condemnation of Beaconsfield Arcade.

SMALL FINES IMPOSED

A fine of $10 was imposed by Mr. Schofield this morning on a Chinese married woman summoned for bringing an unregistered mul tial into the Colony.

Inspector Fraser said defendant had acted in a "straightforward manner. The girl was presented to defendant for $30, "ginger and vinegar money." The S.C.A. regarded the offence as technical.

Wong Shun, a shop master, was fined $10 and ordered to make restitution of $21, to a mul tial, to whom he did not pay wages for the past three years. Defendant claimed he had paid $35 in all to the girl's parents, who were in the country, through a travelling trader. He had also presented them with sausages.

His Worship said he imposed the fine as a warning to others.

It is essential that these offices should be located in the central district and it is proposed to accommodate the Sanitary Central District Office in the Central Market, and the Statistical Office Receiving Branch in the Fire Station Building, ground floor.

The alterations necessary to adapt these premises for the offices are estimated at $4,250.
